The Hancock County Sheriff Department's Investigators have been working as a team on solving recent burglaries, Chief Investigator Kenny Hurt said on Friday.

"Our department has been working with St. Tammany Parish, Pearl River and Harrison Counties for several weeks in trying to solve the rash of burglaries," Hurt added.

One arrest was made Tuesday and the recovery of guns, television sets, two bathroom vanities, a commode, over 300 video tapes, VCRs, DVD players, etc., were recovered according to Investigators André Fizer

STUDENTS SPEND CHRISTMAS VACATION AT HOPE HAVEN

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

Eight students from Western Michigan University were in Waveland this week to help the children at Hope Haven Children's Shelter get ready for Christmas. The students are part of a nationwide program called Alternative Break Experiences dedicated to giving college students the opportunity to experience community service during spring and winter breaks, sort of an alternative to the traditional party experience.

The students are one of six groups from their school who traveled across the country to help where they were needed. They spent a week in Waveland with Hope Haven. Gulfside Methodist Assembly provided lodging for the group.

Though many schools provide funding for the projects, this year the students had to raise their own traveling expenses due to budget constraints. They helped decorate for Christmas and console the children at the shelter.

To be a part of Alternative Breaks an organization must be registered with the project. To register or find out more information simply look up Alternative Breaks Experience on the Internet.

Boys & Girls Club to begin Hancock County operation Jan. 6

Program will provide after-school, summer activities for $5 per year

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

The head of the task force for United Way Mississippi and unit director of the new Hancock county unit of the Boys and Girls Club of America, Benvenutti and director of the Boys and Girls Club of the Gulf Coast Sue Reed met with county supervisors on Wednesday to brief them on the expected January 6 opening of the local branch of the club.

Besides providing after school and summer care for children from kindergarten to age 18 years, the club will fill a gap in the need for character building activities, said Benvenutti.

The unit will be housed at Second Street Elementary School and provide care for children after school from 2:30 to 6:30 p.m. and summer care five days a week from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m., all for a $5 a year registration fee per child.

Besides the traditional sports programs the club will provide activities that strive to build character to enable young people to become young adults who will contribute to the community and to society, said Benvenutti. The program will be open to all Hancock children, regardless of income, though about half the initial 100 slots, will be reserved for lower income households. Right now, because of an overwhelming response, most of the slots are filled, Benvenutti said, but anyone wishing to try for a spot or be put on a waiting list may call for information at 467-6850.

In other business:

County Clerk Tim Kellar asked Supervisors to consider taking a more proactive measures to ensure safety at the Catahoula Creek Bridge because of the high volume of accidents at that location. The bridge is slated to be completely redone next year. Supervisors voted to order portable lights for the approach and to ask the Sheriff's Department to post a deputy at the location to check to see if motorists are exceeding speed limits in the area. County engineer Jeff Clemens said the main problem with the bridge is its bad alignment with the road and the speed at which motorists approach the curvy road.

Clemens said that construction on Texas Flat Road should begin in April.

Supervisors accepted a bid from Hemphill Construction for $72,200 to provide piping for the Pearlinton collection system project.

Rail line through county sounds OK

Christmas season has become too commercialized; focus on family

The story in Thursday's Echo about the Hancock County Port & Harbor considering a new rail line running through Hancock County sounds like a very good idea.

This would give a boost to shipping from Port Bienville Industrial Park, in addition to Stennis International Airport and the Stennis Space Center. The new line is to make a connection in Picayune with the Norfolk Southern Railroad.

There was a time when Hancock County was criss-crossed with independent railroads, primarily dealing with the many lumber companies in the county during the 1800s.

Such a railroad would offer many more industrial opportunities for the county. This would mean more job opportunities for our citizens.

We will be awaiting further developments on the proposed railroad.

As Christmas is within a few days, I was in conversation with an acquaintance a few days ago, whom I think has come up with a good suggestion.

He said, you know Christmas just does not mean as much to me as it once did.

There appears to be too much commercialization on the event and folks seem to miss a very important aspect of Christmas, he stated.

More emphasis should be placed on the family during the holiday seasons, such as the old fashioned family gatherings.

This is one of the things he views as missing in Christmas season.

Another thing he talked about was, he said, you know Christmas, saying they were nice, but, they have lost their impact on him, as many receive gifts they do not like and the person giving a gift spends a lot of time shopping.

He mentioned that it only took him 10 minutes to take care of five Christmas presents. He went to a merchant and purchased five gift certificates.

The person receiving the gift certificates then can purchase what they like.

I think he has two very good ideas.

Saint Nicholas is good for girls

BY DR. WARREN THROCKMORTON

Given his decision making power on the gift issue, my girls made sure Santa Claus got some seriously good cookies most Christmas eves.

Like most daughters, mine didn't know much about the real Saint Nick. But girls everywhere would benefit from a broader knowledge of the historical benefactor.

I picked up somewhere in school that Santa Claus was one alias for a real guy named Saint Nicholas who lived a long time ago. Recently, in a fit of curiosity, I dug up some information that gave me a whole new look at the jolly St. Nick.

I learned that Saint Nicholas lived early in the fourth century in what is now Turkey. He was orphaned early but left with substantial means by his parents. He used this inheritance to benefit others, especially children.

He became the Bishop of Myra in Turkey and played an important leadership role in the church. Called the Wonderworker, he was well known for his generosity to children, hence his association with the legend of Santa Claus.

The story of a benevolent soul giving gifts to children is a part of many cultures with many names. St. Nick as a name for Santa Claus persists to this day.

I read in my study of Saint Nicholas that he is a patron saint of virgins. A patron saint is one that prays to God on behalf of the petitioner.

So if one wants to remain chaste, one may pray to Saint Nicholas who will then lift up the petitioner in spiritual prayer. But there is more to this story.

Legend has it that Saint Nicholas became aware of a desperately poor parishioner having three daughters with no dowry to recommend them for marriage.

The father had planned to sell them into prostitution to provide some means of support. Secretly by night, Nicholas brought bags of gold on three separate occasions to the man's home thus allowing the three daughters to have sufficient means to avoid whoredom and strike a marriage covenant.

On the third visit to deliver the gift, Nicholas was caught in the act of generosity by the man.

Many make the Santa Claus-like association of this story to Saint Nicholas the gift giver.

I see another angle. For reasons that often involve money, women today have few protectors, few St. Nicks. Bob Dylan sang it truly two decades ago that today's culture seems to

A Soldiers Christmas

It was the week before Christmas and all through Iraq,

Santa was seen sneaking around with his sack. The sight of him made all the guys glad.

They were excited to see what he had.

He plopped down the package and reached in his hand,

But what he pulled out, the group did not understand.

"A star for us Santa, what would we want with that?"

Santa smiled, sat down and took off his hat.

He scratched his head and began to say,

"Boys, this isn't just any star, it will show you the way."

"Show us the way?" A soldier called from the rear,

"All we want is to get far away from here!"

"We miss our families during this holiday,

We want to be home, can your star make it happen today?"

"I know," Santa said, "It's hard son, and you miss those you love,

What I am suggesting is strength from above."

When you look up at the stars tonight,

Find one, that to you, shines the most bright.

Think of your family who sees that star too,

And know that they're also thinking of you.

Then remember another star that once did glow,

And lead the three wise men so long ago.

To worship a child that on Christmas we sent,

To save us, teach us, and help us repent.

But man doesn't live by bread alone.

'Chairish Your Theater' kicks off Bay Theatre fund-raisers

BSLLT launches campaign to raise funds for renovations

BY SHANNON JENKINS
Staff Writer

A massive campaign to raise funds for the restoration of the Bay St. Louis Little Theatre has begun.

Theater members are urging the community to "purchase" chairs in the historic building on Boardman Avenue as part of the "Chairish Your Theater" fund-raiser.

"Buy a seat in honor or memory of someone special," said Claire Haun, a board member. "Your chair will be identified by an elegant brass name plaque."

Purchasing a chair, which costs $150, is the first of several fund-raisers for the theater. The second fund-raiser took place this weekend with the one-man show of "A Christmas Carol," starring Arthur Bailey Jr.

Others include CPR instruction for Heart Month in February and a silent auction where the community may bid on some of the theater's original chairs, which will be decorated by local artists. These chairs will be replaced by new seats the theater recently claimed.

In order to receive a grant of $60,000 from the Mississippi Arts Commission, theater members must raise $40,000 in matching funds through these fund-raisers.

"BSLLT is a historical icon in Hancock County that has been a resource for entertainment and artistic expression while contributing to the quality of life in our area for more than 50 years," said Haun, who is preparing the grant application for submission. "Now it is time for the community to embrace our theater and complete the much needed refurbishing/renovations in order to preserve this integral part of our history and our future!"

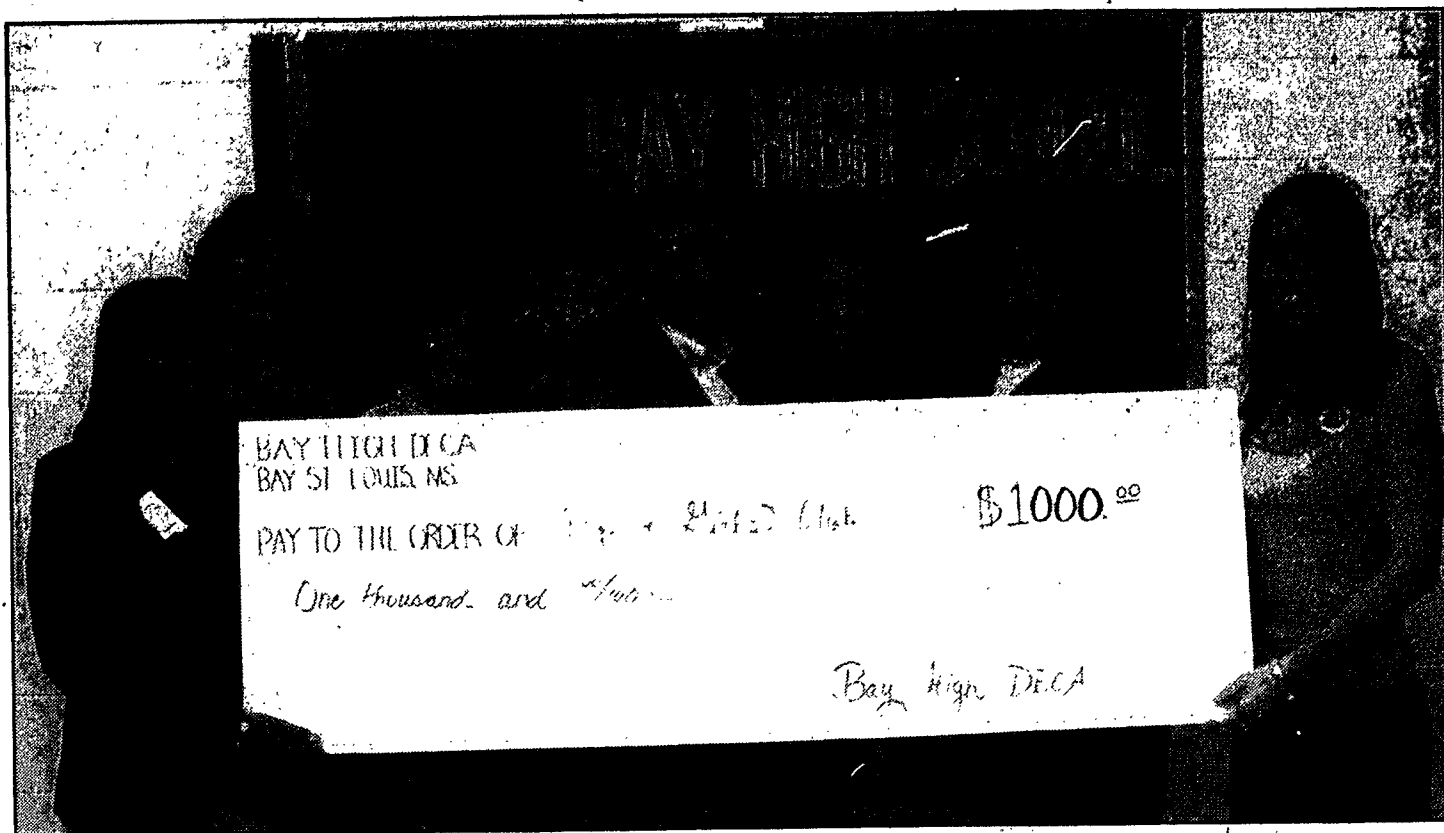

As part of a two-phase plan, renovations include replacing floor, subfloor and foundation piers in the backstage area, adding nine tons of heating and air-conditioning, installing a new stage curtain and track system, replacing windows in the backstage area and adding wall insulation and gypsum board finish to the backstage area.

To purchase a seat in the theater or for more details, contact Claire Haun at 228-463-9793 or Sandy Reese at 228-466-2728.

promote "old men turning young daughters into whores."

A look at any magazine rack will tell you that there is a market for flesh and the demographic is predominantly male, ages 13 to 90. Feminism has been no help here. Girls gone wild with sexual freedom most often leads to the exploitation by men.

Women today are, of course not as helpless as those three girls saved by Saint Nicholas but I doubt we'd see as much skin if there were no gawking male purchasers, eager to buy and sell the images as commerce.

We need Saint Nicholas today. We need the gift of chastity and modesty. We need more protectors of young women and fewer of those who would sell them into the brothel of commercialism.

We need you today Saint Nicholas, the wonderworker. Our daughters need the good gifts of those who truly value women as intrinsically golden.

Council -- subdivision end of the tract.

Thursday's action came as council considered four variance requests that had been before the city Planning and Zoning Commission on Wednesday night. Rather than have the applicants wait for final action at council's January meeting, officials agreed to consider the matters immediately.

Two of the items on council's agenda — including the Blue Meadow project — had been recommended for denial by the P&Z commission on Wednesday. Council approved all four, however.

And, council members indicated future support for two additional variance requests that haven't even been to the P&Z.

The Blue Meadow project, known as Blueridge Court Subdivision, is designed as a cul-de-sac development. Its drainage plan calls for the large pond to hold storm water until it empties into the city's drainage system along Blue Meadow.

Council was told the pond also will be stocked with bass, as an amenity to the subdivision property owners. Details of the development will be up for later site plan consideration by council.

Public objections to the proposal had centered around drainage considerations. And there were questions about whether the city had posted the required public notice signs on the property, prior to the P&Z action this week.

While city officials insist that the notification was posted — at least for a while — Mayor Eddie Favre said he'd consulted with city attorney John Scafidi about the question. Favre said there shouldn't be a legal problem because the city had met the "intent" of public notice by advertising the matter in the newspaper, and notifying all property owners within 300 feet of the tract.

Favre said since the city had taken those steps, he was advised that officials could "waive the technicality" of whether the notice was posted on the property.

Council's vote to approve the preliminary subdivision and front footage variances was unanimous.

Another application that the P&Z had recommended for rejection also won council's unanimous okay: allowing the owner of Wheel Inn Mobile Home Park to build six gravel pads for mobile home sites.

Gerald W. Scafidi said he wanted to move the sites from the front of the park along Highway 90 to clear the way for a chain food outlet that wants the highway frontage site.

Although the city code requires concrete pads for mobile homes, city officials said that regulation is outdated and not in step with requirements of the National Building Code. The mayor said concrete building pads only worsen drainage capacity.

Another variance winning council's blessing provides for an eight-foot brick and wrought iron fence at 204 Bookter St. Hilton J. Eymard said he wants to build the fence because a neighbor to his bed and breakfast establishment complains about building materials stored on the grounds.

Eymard said a tall fence should quell the complaining about a "junkyard" appearance.

Ward 2 council member Jim Thriffiley said the neighbor may be "justified" in his complaint. "You have a lot of debris," Thriffiley said.

And Thriffiley said he's worried about allowing eight foot fences in general. He cast the lone vote against the variance.

Ron Fauchaux won a two-foot side yard setback variance to accommodate a handicapped accessible vehicle at 704 South Beach Boulevard.

Two other variance applications that didn't make it on the P&Z agenda for this month were brought to council's attention by property owners anxious to get a feel for official reaction.

In one case, Thomas Duncan said he's hopeful of opening a pastry shop at 112 North Second Street — but he has no on-site parking as required. Council appeared receptive to the idea, and the mayor said there probably is enough public parking available nearby to negate the on-site regulation.

New owners of 430 Main Street told council they've run into unexpected lot line variance regulations in renovating an old home where they hope to retire. Ferdie and Silvia Vonbehren said they're restoring the house and building an addition, so they can retire here from Chalmette, LA.

and Tom Roan, who are heading up the investigation.

"Jerry Daniel Garth, 34, Shoreline Park was arrested and charge with burglary. Other arrests are expected," Fizer said.

The items recovered Thursday were stolen within the past three months and have been identified by their owners; two were in the county and a third in Waveland.

In addition to Fizer and Roan, Hancock Investigators John Luther, Rita Blaize-Watson, Deron Cuevas, Burt Johnson and a Waveland Detective were involved in the investigation of the burglaries and recovery of the items.

"We are right now in the season for burglaries. All residents should have make, model, serial numbers and identification of all of the contents in their homes. This helps officers in the recovery process," Hurt said. "Most of the burglaries happen during the day time. Culprits drive up to the back door of a residence, most of the time in an isolated area, kick the back door in, grab what they can and flee within a few minutes."

"Residents need to be alert for suspicious vehicles and persons in their area. If possible they need to get color, make and license tags of suspicious vehicles," Hurt added.

"Any and all information will be kept in confidence. Our department is working around the clock and any information can be helpful," Hurt added.

Anyone with any information on a burglary in their area, or see suspicious persons, or vehicles in their neighborhoods, are asked to call the sheriff's department at 228-467-5101, or 601-798-8555.

no exception. The tournament netted over $5,000 which was used to purchase the toys.

Over 34 teams totaling 134 golfers participated in this year's tournament. Mary Jones, NAVOCEANO's Logistics and Management Services Department Director and one of the organizers of the annual golf tournament to benefit Toys for Tots, said that next year's plan is to double the number of teams by having both morning and afternoon tournaments. "We are delighted with the outcome of the tournament this year, and we especially want to thank all the local merchants for their contributions and support."

CAPT Parker Lumpkin, the Executive Officer of the Naval Oceanographic Office, was joined by military and civilian personnel in presenting the toys to the Marine Corps that included bicycles, dolls, trucks, games, etc. In his remarks, Lumpkin spoke of the hard work and untiring efforts of all those involved in the golf tournament to make this year's toy drive a success.

"It is very heartwarming to know that hundreds of area children will benefit from the efforts of our Naval Oceanographic Office employees," said Lumpkin. "And, we applaud the continued efforts of the Marine Corps to make every child's Christmas dream come true."

Pearl -- wastewater

processed water into the Pearl River.

The port is in the process of a $628,800,000 wastewater treatment plant improvement project that will allow the port to treat twice as much as the previous plant and take on the treatment of processed water, which requires a special method of treatment. The project will increase the size of the plant from a 35,000 gallons-per-day capacity to 75,000 gallons-per-day, with plans to increase the plant to a 150,000 gallons-per-day capacity in the future.

District 2 Supervisor Rocky Pullman, who also sits on the board of the Southern Regional Wastewater Management District, said that the port would still consider joining with the county to centralize wastewater treatment and disposal of the treated water.

Treated wastewater can be used to irrigate pulp wood, golf courses or other land in a process called spray irrigation. The process is in widespread use across the country as an alternate to dumping millions of gallons per day of treated wastewater into area waterways.

Currently the Southern Regional Plant dumps about 3.5 million gallons per day of treated wastewater into Edward's Bayou and are permitted for up to 4.9 million gallons per day.

It was unclear if the processed water would be suitable for this method of disposal.

Bay Council wants engineering proposals for drainage system woes

BY MARY G. SEILEY
Staff Writer

Bay St. Louis officials are seeking engineering consultant proposals to study drainage system troubles in part of the old downtown area.

Mayor Eddie Favre said Thursday he will present the proposals at council's first meeting in January. He told City Council members that a warranty covering the problems of concern runs until September 2004.

That's longer than city officials originally had thought they had to study the matter.

At issue are several drainage pipe joint failures that have occurred in town. Officials say the joints were grouted together, after inspections showed that they were not solidly connected. In all, more than 500 such grouted connections were made.

While only five or six of the joints have failed so far, officials are worried that others may be in bad shape also. Rather than find the problems after the warranty has expired, council members want to document to conditions immediately.

The work under warranty was part of a $3.5 million drainage improvement project completed a couple of years ago.

Retirement system will host town meeting in Bay St. Louis

Special to the Sea Coast Echo

The Public Employees' Retirement System of Mississippi (PERS) will conduct a Town Meeting in Bay St. Louis Thursday, January 8, 2004. The meeting will be from 6 until 9 p.m. in the auditorium at Bay High School, 750 Blue Meadow Road.

All PERS members and their spouses are invited.

Town Meetings provide members of the Retirement

System with information on retirement benefits, estate planning and opportunities members have for tax-sheltered savings through the Deferred Compensation Plan. As is true with all meetings and seminars PERS conducts for its members, there is no charge to attend a Town Meeting. Pre-registration is not required to attend a Town Meeting.

Town Meetings are held in the evening when most

PERS members may attend without missing time from work. Members include eligible employees of state agencies, public school districts, cities and counties, public universities and community colleges and other public agencies, including libraries, hospitals and water districts.

This will be the first Town Meeting held at a location on the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

Volunteers needed to help families file for tax credits

Training has begun, but more volunteers are needed in Hancock and Harrison counties to help low-income families file tax returns to claim valuable federal tax benefits.

The EITC is a federal income tax benefit designed to assist working families with incomes up to $34,692 and individuals making up to $11,230. It has been called the most significant federal program for lifting Americans out of poverty.

Volunteers are needed to serve at any one of the eight Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) sites that will be open during the 2004 tax season. The tax law training began this week for the volunteers and the next opportunity for training will be January 12th. "We are looking for volunteers who are interested in helping people and making a difference in our own communities," said Arita Chester, Program Director for the Gulf Coast Community Action Agency. Chester is chairing this effort in Harrison and Hancock counties. "No prior tax experience is necessary and the training is free," Chester said. Volunteers can choose the days and hours they will be available to help. If we have a substantial number of new volunteers, additional training dates will be made available.

Training involves a one day tax law class as well as one day of training on the TaxWise Software which is used for filing the returns. All volunteers must participate in the computer training. The next Tax Law Training will be held on Monday, January 12th from 6:00 pm until 9:00 pm. If unable to attend on this date, volunteers may choose self-study and complete a test on the Tax Law portion of the training. Additional assistance is also needed to distribute flyers and informational materials within Harrison and Hancock counties.

For additional information or to sign up as a volunteer, please contact Arita Chester at 868-4175.

The Earned Income Credit (EIC) is a special credit for lower income workers. The credit reduces the amount of tax that you owe (if any). The credit is subtracted from the amount of tax you owe, so you end up paying less tax and you may get back some money from the government. Even if you do not have a tax liability, you might still get some refund.

To qualify for the credit for 2003, both your earned income and your adjusted gross income must be less than the following amounts.

1. $11,230 ($12,230, if filing a joint return) if you do not have a qualifying child.
2. $29,666 ($30,666, if filing a joint return) if you have one qualifying child.
3. $33,692 ($34,692, if filing a joint return) if you have two or more qualifying children.

You must also meet certain eligibility requirements in order to claim the credit. There may be consequences for those who knowingly claim an Earned Income Credit to which they are not entitled.

Northrop Grumman receives award

Northrop Grumman Corporation (NYSE: NOC) has received the 2003 Frost & Sullivan Technology Leadership Award for Homeland Security and Homeland Defense in recognition of its roles in the Integrated Deepwater System program, and in the Immigration and Naturalization Service's (INS) Technology Enterprise Automation Management Support (TEAMS) program.

Some unemployed lose aid as extension on jobless benefits lapses

BY BARBARA POWELL
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Jobless benefits will run out next week for thousands of Mississippians when a federal program expires that had extended assistance to the long-term unemployed.

Congress adjourned for the year without approving what would have been the fourth extension of the program since March 2002.

The Temporary Emergency Unemployment Compensation program, extended three times already since it was initiated in March 2002, gives workers an extra 13 weeks of jobless benefits after they exhaust their standard 26 weeks of state benefits.

This marks the second year in a row that Congress has adjourned without addressing the issue.

Last year, the then Democratic-controlled Senate unanimously approved extending the benefits. But the Republican-led House, which earlier agreed on an extension, refused to take up the issue again.

Support from President Bush nudged Congress to restore the benefits in January. But this year, Bush has been silent on the issue and Democrats in Congress, who support an extension couldn't bring the matter to a vote before the program expires Dec. 21.

The sentiment was the Republican leadership chose not to offer that in their end-of-year spending bill passed in the House last week," said Lanier Avant, a spokesman for Rep. Bennie Thompson, D-Miss.

Democrats have been pressing the leadership to do that, and Congressman Thompson was extremely disappointed. There are still almost 9 million people without work, even though the economy has shown signs of improvement.

The federal program in 2002 paid $52.3 million in jobless benefits to 39,100 unemployed Mississippians. When the program expired last December, about 6,000 laid-off Mississippians were drawing funds from the federal program.

An estimated 80,000 to 90,000 workers a week exhaust their state benefits nationwide.

The jobless rate has been improving in recent months: The national rate fell one-tenth of a percentage point in November to 5.9 percent, the lowest rate since March. Mississippi's jobless rate was 5.7 percent in October, compared to 7 percent a year ago but up slightly from 5.4 percent in September.

But the job recovery still lags behind the recovery that is lifting the rest of the economy. The U.S. Department of Labor says the ranks of the long-term unemployed continue to increase.

In Mississippi, the average duration of unemployment during the third quarter was 23.2 weeks.

Nationwide, in November, 2 million people were jobless for 27 weeks or more, long enough to exhaust their six months of regular unemployment benefits. A year ago, 1.8 million Americans had been without work longer than 27 weeks.

The average duration of unemployment nationwide was 20.1 weeks last month, compared to 17.9 weeks a year ago.

"We have this cadre of people out for six months or more who can't find their way back into the workplace," said Mike Wald, a regional economist with the Bureau of Labor Statistics. "These people are in industries like telecommunications and high tech, where they're competing with each other for the relatively few number of new jobs in those industries."

A Christmas Tale

"Twas the night before Christmas and there wasn't a sound,
The North Pole was quiet, 'cause all their motors were down.

"Christmas is cancelled," Santa said with a sigh.

"Have you called Bay Motor Winding?" was Rudolph's reply.

But would anyone come out at this time and date?

Since Bay Motor has 24 hour service, it's never too late.

So Santa decided to give the boys a call...

And thanks to Bay Motor Winding, we'll have Christmas after all.

The Big Guy depends on us, shouldn't you?

Woman thanks the Bay firemen who saved her life

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

To Maryan Laurent, two Bay St. Louis firemen are just about the best people around. The men, Alan Spence and Matt Whitman, saved her life Laurent says. While working at her job at the Bay St. Louis Housing Authority, where she had worked for 14 years, Laurent's heart stopped.

She had recently undergone an operation to put in a pace maker and the device malfunctioned, causing Laurent to black out at her desk. Co-workers called 911, but the firemen, being literally across the street, arrived first.

The station got a call for a possible heart attack and firemen arrived to find Marian with her head in her hands, partially revived. When they put on a blood pressure cuff, she fell back and out of her chair and Spence and Whitman lowered her to the floor.

Detecting no pulse the firemen acted quickly, administering CPR and attaching a heart defibrillator. At that point AMR

The teddy bear hunt and one dog's tail

I was over at the Pass Christian Bookstore one evening a short time ago to hear a talk by Minor Ferris Buchanan, the author of "Holt Collier."

I had met Minor a little over a year ago at a convention in New Orleans. We spent a little time together and he had been kind enough to give me a copy of his book.

I had found the book fascinating and so, when he recently told me he would be at the Pass Christian Bookstore to talk about the book, I made a point to be there.

The name, Holt Collier, is probably not familiar to very many people and so I should explain. Collier first got his fame in a rather backward way; it was through the beloved children's toy the "Teddy Bear." Teddy Bears aren't as well known now as they were when I was a boy. Now, you see them on the Antique Roadshow, where an originally $5 Teddy Bear can sell for the price of the living room sofa. Teddy Bears are cute and are meant to be, but their origin was originally political.

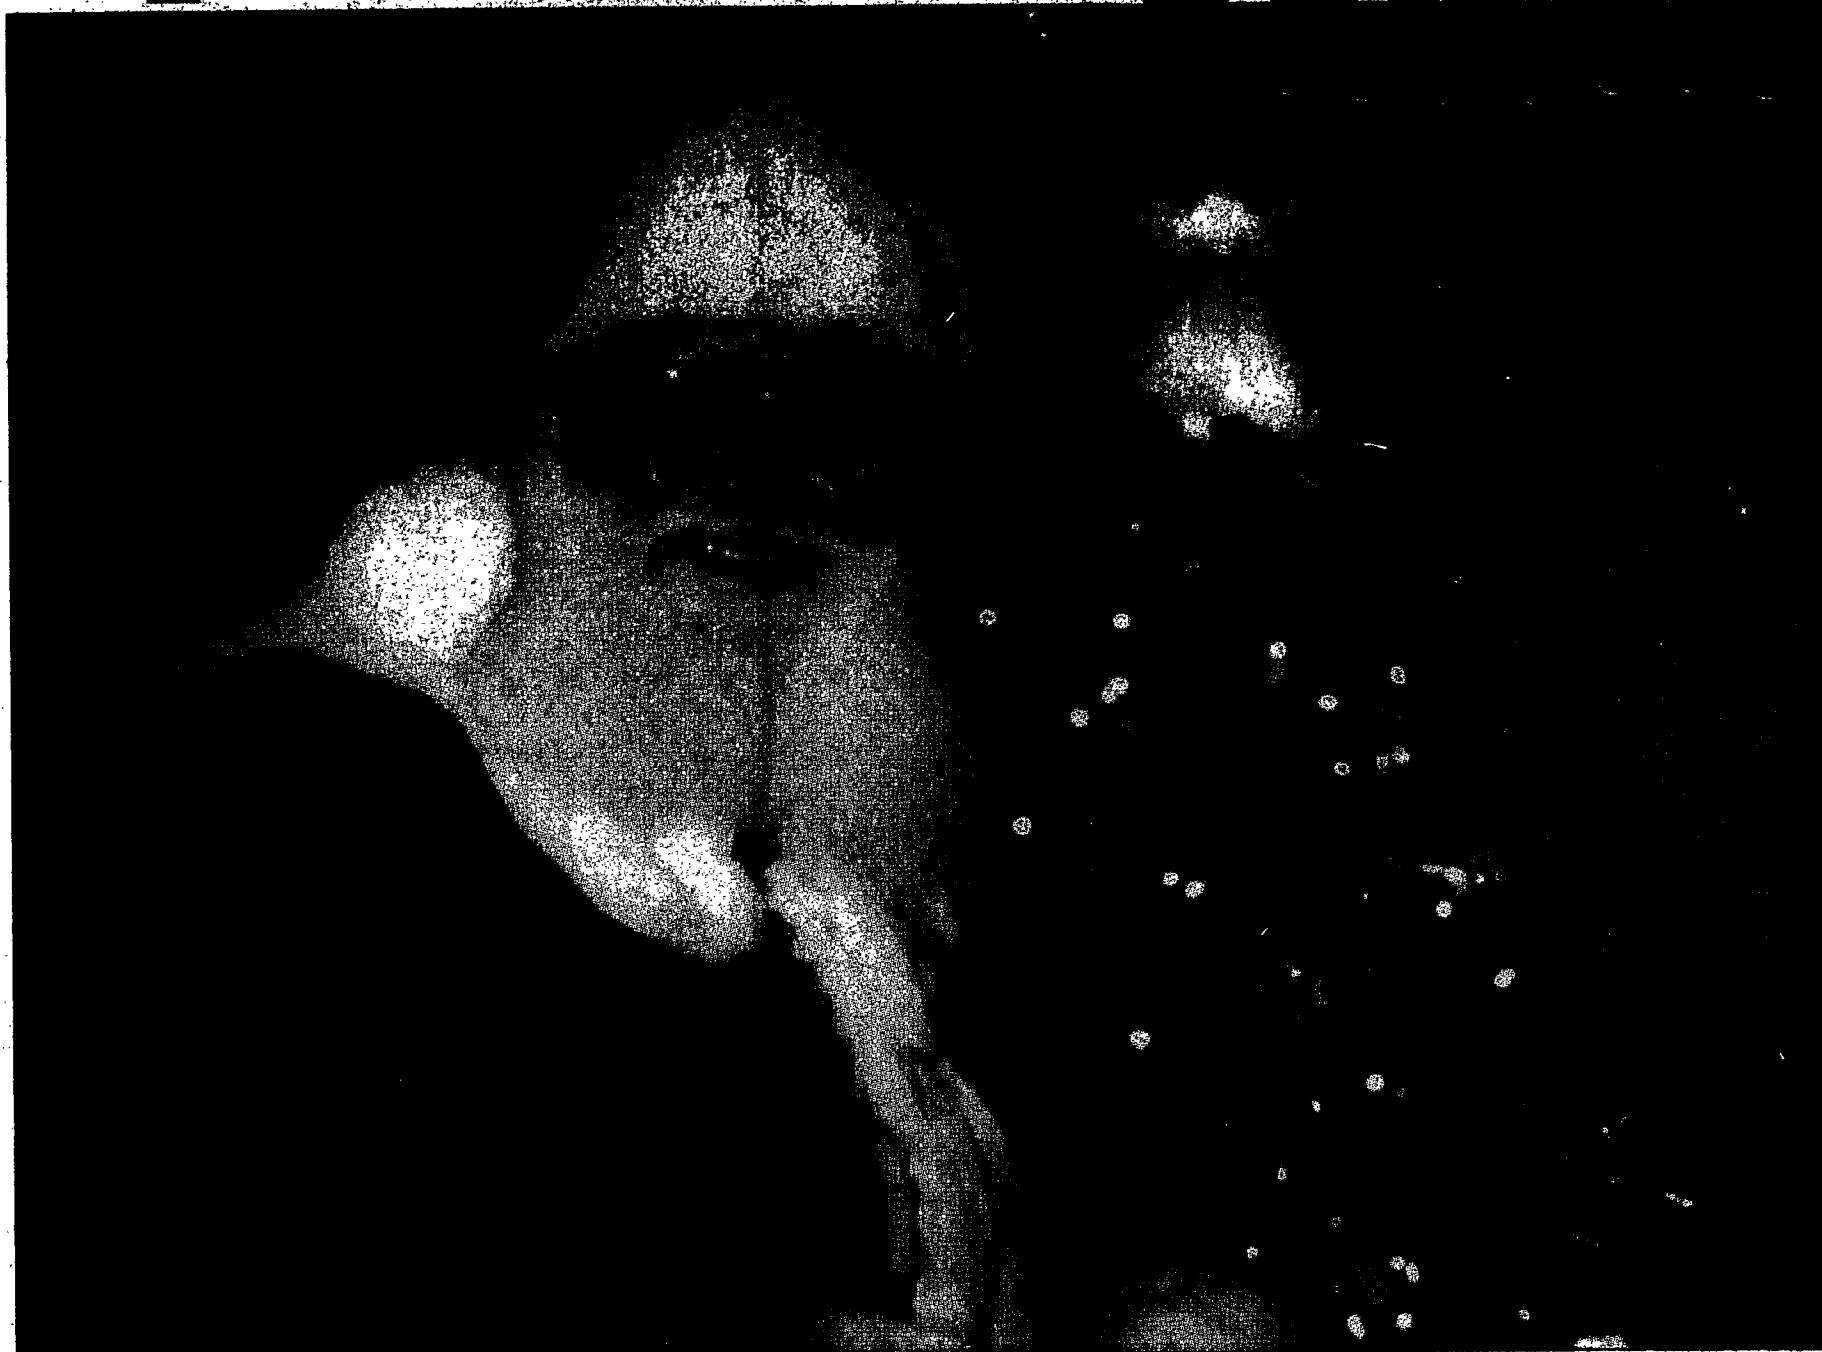

Teddy Bears came from a 1902 black bear hunt held in Sharkey County, Mississippi. The most notable hunter in the men assembled for the hunt was President Theodore Roosevelt. The President had heard a lot about black bear hunting in Mississippi and as an avid hunter wanted to get one as a trophy. As one of the best black bear hunters and guides in the region, Holt Collier was asked to organize the hunt and get the president his bear.

Things did not go well on the hunt due to events not under Holt's control and after chasing a large wild black bear to the stand where the President was supposed to be waiting, he found that Roosevelt was not there.

Enter the legend of the Teddy Bear.

Holt tied the understandably very irate bear up to a tree and someone went to

Speaking with Santa

Santa really does live way up north...

He really does. I know because I visited him at his house just a few days ago, way out in the woods just like they say.

And although I didn't get to see his reindeer (I think they were out running in the woods), I did get to see some other pets he keeps, like a pot bellied pig and some goats and a spotted cat that likes to chew on you.

Although he uses the name Santa Claus at this time of year, he uses the name Larry Daniel Carter Sr. at other times of the year and for official purposes, for all those nonbelievers who don't think there is really a Santa Claus.

And when he has worked his other jobs through the years (at today's prices even Santa sometimes has to work an extra job), Larry Daniel Carter Sr. looks much better on a pay check. Mostly, in the recent past Carter worked as a police officer for the Waveland Police Department, where he served as a captain just before his retirement in 1992, he said. He also served as two-time commander for Waveland's American Legion Post 77. And, as a board member on the Bay Waveland School Board.

He has nine children and 13 grandchildren. Before becoming Santa, Carter served in the United States Navy in Vietnam.

But he first realized that he was Santa Claus back in the early 1970s while working as a camera manager at the Chalmette Kmart. They needed Santa to visit with the children coming into the store and Carter realized that he was the man for the job. Since that time Carter has been Santa for children all over the place faithfully every year.

Being Santa isn't a particularly big money making pastime for Carter, he says. Most of his appearances are done by donation. What he would really like, he says, is to have a new suit of clothes. The ones he has are about 12 years old. The new clothes would have a vintage touch, he says, with a long coat and a hand carved cane, if he had his way, that is. Even Santa has a Christmas list, you see.

He doesn't need any help in the hair and beard department because he has all that naturally. You can pull his snow white beard all you want, and it stays right in place. And he doesn't need any pillows to pad his ho ho ho belly. It is all his own. Ask him next time you see him.

Santa's appearances usually start up around Thanksgiving and continue right up to Christmas Eve, of course. But during that time leading up to Christmas, he may appear at several locations on the same day, every day, seven days a week. A lot of work for such a big jolly guy. Sometimes 200 kids, runny noses and all, want a kiss.

Nandinas provide top fall, winter shrub color

With almost indescribable leaf color and huge panicles of bright red berries, nandinas are among the very best shrubs for fall and winter color in terms of both leaves and fruit.

With almost indescribable leaf color and huge panicles of bright red berries, nandinas are among our very best shrubs for fall and winter color in terms of both leaves and fruit. Sad is the home landscape without a heavy sampling of these wonderful shrubs.

Sometimes called heavenly bamboo, nandina does indeed have a somewhat exotic appearance. It is actually in the barberry family and has relatives like the mahonia.

Our ancestors planted the old-fashioned Nandina domestica that is still outstanding. You can't find a better nandina for berries, which are almost as pretty for fall color as the leaves on the newer varieties. In fact, I often have callers looking for this heirloom that has almost become a pass-along.

To keep this nandina most attractive, prune about one-third of the canes each winter. If you select the tallest canes, it is not too hard to keep the plants fairly compact. Four dwarf varieties have captured the lion's share of the market and are indeed well worth having in most landscapes.

My favorite is the Harbour Dwarf. It branches from the ground and forms a dense mound 2 to 3 feet tall and slightly wider. It has a reddish-purple color in the winter and will fruit at maturity.

Bay High DECA students gear up for competition

BY JULIE NICHOLS

It is that time of year again. Bay High DECA students are gearing up for competition. The season is fast approaching and preparation is long underway. Any spare minute in class is consumed with practicing competitive events. DECA members often take time out of their busy afternoon schedules to work on testing, role plays, and manuals.

Students from Bay High will begin the competition season with Regionals, which will be held on January 7th at Pearl River Community College.

Students will also attend the State Career Development Conference for competition in Jackson on February 11th - 14th. Plans are also being made to travel to Nashville, Tennessee for the International Career Development Conference that will be held the first week in May. Bay High DECA is committed to success and hopes to reach the platinum level through hard work and practice.

BAY HIGH CELEBRATES NATIONAL DECA WEEK

October 13-17, 2003 was a busy week for Bay High DECA students. Careful planning was done prior to the week. DECA students decided that the week should be fun and encourage other students to take Marketing or Co-op classes, thus making them eligible to join DECA. The exciting week began with a slide show being aired on the Bay High news show.

Tiger Talk, that highlighted Fall Leadership. On Tuesday, students who would wear a blue and gold ribbon received a piece of candy. DECA members modeled professional dress on Wednesday and on Thursday, DECA advisors decorated their doors with "Going Platinum" banners. To bring an end to the week, students wore DECA t-shirts on Friday and second year students visited classrooms to recruit underclassmen. DECA Week was a huge success. It was exciting and allowed DECA students to promote the great organization that they are proud to be a part of.

BAY HIGH DECA OPENS SCHOOL BASED ENTERPRISE

The Bay High DECA chapter has opened a school store that is operated by students. The name of the store is the Tiger Paw and it is located in the rear of the Marketing classroom. The store opened with just basic necessities. Capri Suns and Little Debbie snack cakes made up the menu.

However, in just a few short months, the store has grown to be more accommodating and successful than anyone imagined. The Tiger Paw is now a carpeted area with brightly painted walls to provide an inviting atmosphere for the students at the school. A banner with the name of the store is proudly displayed. The menu has now expanded to include Minute Maid products, chips, muffins, granola bars, candy, and other snack items. One of the feature items associated with the Tiger Paw is a cash register equipped with a scanner that tracks inventory. Students in Marketing learn about physical and perpetual inventory through the operation of the cash register. In addition to learning about inventory, students learn communication skills and the basics of owning and operating a business.

The Tiger Paw plans to extend its product line to include school supplies and spirit items in the near future.

Profits earned from the store are used to fund DECA activities and trips associated with competition. This year DECA students will travel to Pearl River Community College, Jackson, and Nashville, TN for competition. Bay High DECA is very excited about operating a school based enterprise. It has proven to be very beneficial for DECA students as well as the entire student body.

He now maintains a summer home in the southeastern part of that state and in the same area where he was born. You'll note that Bill even came dressed for the occasion.

Doc and Margie Toups, pictured above recently spoke to the Kiwanis Club of Hancock-West Harrison about their adventure in starting up a monthly news magazine and how it has grown over the past ten years. Santa

What Santa likes most, he says, is visiting people at their homes, or private parties, or at schools, not in malls or large stores. At private events he can take a moment to chat with people about themselves, he says, and sometimes bring back a memory or two about a Christmas past. After all, Santa knows these things.

This year, for instance he has a surprise visit planned to a grown-up lady to bring her a present that will remind her of her very favorite toy from her childhood. He told me who it was, but I had to promise to keep it a secret.

One of his most heartwarming memories is visiting with the widow and children of a young man who had just been killed in an accident to try to bring at least little joy to the season.

A funny thing is that one of Santa's own grandchildren just does not like it when his grandpa is dressed in his Santa clothes. He won't go near him when he is dressed as

Santa, Carter said. He will even call and ask, "Grandpa, are you Santa now?"

Children, he says, recognize him whether he is dressed as Santa or not.

"Children look at your eyes," Carter said. "They look at everything else too, but they look at your eyes and read you."

Because of that, Carter says, he may be out somewhere, even when he was dressed as a police officer, for instance, and a child would come up and say, "Hi Santa."

Santa's special message at this festive time of year?

"You have to believe, just believe," Santa Carter says.

get the President. When Roosevelt returned and saw that the bear was tied to a tree, he refused to shoot it. A reporter on the scene sent the story back to Washington and a cartoon was drawn of the event. There were several errors in the cartoon. A particular one that caught everyone's attention was that the bear was a little cub being held by the guide.

It didn't matter that the depiction was not true; the effect of the cute bear cub on the imagination of the American public was almost instantaneous. Teddy Bears were quickly made by toy manufacturers everywhere and Teddy Bears were just as quickly sold. It quickly became sort of Roosevelt's personal logo and when he died a cartoon of a small, sad Teddy Bear was drawn waving a tearful good-bye.

The other error in the cartoon was that the guide was shown to be white. Holt Collier was black.

It is this that really gives the whole focus to Minor Buchanan book. The fact that Holt Collier was the guide on Roosevelt's famous Mississippi bear hunt, is a comparatively minor incident in his life when we view it as a whole. To say it was an interesting life, is grossly understating it. Holt led a life most little boys dream about.

Holt was a veteran of the Civil War, a war in which, despite being a slave, he fought on the side of the Confederacy, fighting at Shiloh, and subsequent to that action, joining the Ninth Texas Cavalry, and fighting in a number of other engagements. In later years, he was given a small pension by the state of Mississippi as a Confederate veteran.

But there is more, much more to the life that Holt led. He was a post-Civil War Texas cowboy, a Mississippi sheriff's deputy (he faced off, shot and killed a dangerous outlaw), a suspected murderer of a man who he believed belied a friend, and a famed black bear hunter in which he was know for killing his bears single-handed with a hunting knife.

Minor tells all of this in his well-documented book and he does it very well and very enjoyably.

That night at the Pass Christian Bookstore, he entertained us with anecdotes of things he has found since writing about the life of Holt Collier.

I found the interesting remark dealt with the painting that is used as the cover for the book. It is based on a photo taken of Holt when he was in his sixties. To simplify the presentation, Minor had the artist remove a wagon that was behind Holt and thin the trees slightly.

"Also, in the original photo," Minor continued, "there was a pack of dogs around Holt. One of the dogs, oriented away from the camera and facing Holt, had its tail up. Since we were going to hang the final painting on our living room wall, I had him lower the tail."

This startled me. Only female dogs (except in heat) normally keep their tails down.

I didn't say it at the time, but later looking at the cover, I realized with that single paint stroke, Minor is probably the first person that has been responsible for a sex change of a dog.

Gardening

Nana was the most popular for years because of its outstanding color. It gets about 18" inches tall and is great as a border plant or massed in a bed. Personally, I have never gotten accustomed to its cupped, slightly distorted-looking leaves.

Firepower, which originated in New Zealand, does not have the foliage distortion of the Nana. Firepower grows to about 1 to 2 feet in height and has a dense, compact growth habit. The color that develops toward winter is a fluorescent red.

Gulf Stream is a great variety with good, intensely red winter color that turns a metallic blue-green in the summer. It grows to about 2 1/2 feet tall in a compact mound.

Successful establishment of nandinas in the landscape often depends on planting techniques and care. They prefer to be placed in a shrub bed that is well-drained to moist, loose, and rich in nutrients and humus. Cover with a layer of mulch to prevent loss of moisture, deter weeds and moderate summer temperatures.

When preparing a new shrub bed for nandinas or other container-grown shrubs, use metal edging, landscape timbers or brick to separate turf from beds and to raise the soil with organic matter for good drainage.

Rather than straight lines, plant in bold curves to create a mystery as to what lies around the corner. Plant the nandina in groupings of odd numbers like three, five or seven.

Nandinas work best as colorful foregrounds to taller evergreen plants like hollies, ligustrums and cleyeras. You also can create a spectacular look using them in combination with ornamental grass.

The fall and winter colors of the nandina are so bold and riotous that sometimes it is hard to plant flowers with them. Massing flowers of a single color is most effective in this case.

For winter or early spring color, plant pansies with the nandinas. My favorites to use with these boldly colored shrubs are Crystal Bowl blue pansies, and Crown or Crystal Bowl yellow pansies. The blue perennial creeping phlox or Louisiana phlox also work well.

For the rest of the year, we can use them as a background for pockets of color in the summer with petunias, verbenas or ageratums.

When buying shrubs on a tight budget, remember to buy larger, container-grown shrubs and smaller trees. It might seem expensive to buy 3- and 5-gallon shrubs, but you will not need as many, and you will be more likely to plant at the correct spacing.

Scott graduates Murray State

Murray State University will honor its most recent graduates Saturday, Dec. 13, at the Regional Special Events Center. The event marks the university's sixth annual December Commencement. President F. King Alexander invites family and friends to join the campus community for December Commencement, which has become one of the university's most festive end-of-the-year events. According to information from the registrar's office, a total of 835 students have applied for degrees at the end of the fall 2003 semester. The following individuals from Hancock County, MS, are among the December graduation applicants:

Marianne Scott of Diamondhead, MS Bachelor of Science

Local students among fall graduates at MS

Nearly 1,300 Mississippi State students are candidates for degrees at the conclusion of the 2003 fall semester.

Graduation exercises will be held Dec. 13 at 10 a.m. in Humphrey Coliseum.

Thad Cochran, Mississippi's senior United States senator, is the commencement speaker.

Since first elected to the Senate in 1978, Cochran, a Pontotoc native and former Byram resident, has enjoyed four landslide re-elections. He currently serves as chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee and also is a member of the Appropriations and Rules committees.

Degree candidates from Hancock County are:

Rhonda C. McCaa, Diamondhead Education - MS
Tasha L. Payton, Pearlinton Arts & Sciences - BFA

The kindergarten classes from Hancock North Central Elementary School visited Hancock Medical Center recently to tour the facility. The students were able to visit the Emergency Department, Radiology Department and the hospital nursery. The visit gave the children the opportunity to speak with doctors, nurses and other hospital employees.

Local students named to PRCC's Who's Who

Pearl River Community College has released its list of Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges for the 2003-2004 school year.

Sixty-three students were selected by a committee of department chairs after being nominated by the PRCC faculty. Who's Who students were evaluated on scholastic standing, service to the community, leadership in extra curricular activities and future potential.

"These students are outstanding members of our student body," said Dr. Adam Breerwood, dean of students affairs at PRCC. "They are to be congratulated for this accomplishment while at PRCC."

They join an elite group of students from more than 1,400 institutions of higher learning in all 50 states, the District of Columbia and several foreign nations.

The students and their hometowns include:
BAY ST. LOUIS - Kevin Netto;
KILN - Ginger Hoda;
WAVELAND - Sky Thomas.

MANY PEOPLE VIEW A MESSAGE FROM AFAR WITH "DREAD CONCERN"! THE WORDS COMING OVER THE PHONE: "THIS IS WESTERN UNION CALLING" HAVE CAUSED SOME FOLKS TO HAVE SEVERE PALPITATIONS! I stand corrected — 'Let It Be' by the Beatles is not about drugs

"I just called to let you know that your analysis of the song 'Let It Be' is completely wrong.

The song is the result of a vision of his mother which Paul McCartney had. It had nothing to do with marijuana."

After ascertaining that I was the person who authored last week's article, God Helps Us Mysteriously, Jerry L'Enfant let me have it. His voice had the quivering, stiff sound of one who was outraged by my misinformation.

Mr. L'Enfant searched the Internet and very considerably faxed me some very informative information about the Beatles. Of course, they did write songs about drugs, but "Let It Be" is not one of them.

Paul McCartney's mother Mary died when he was 14 years old. In a dream, his sainted mother appeared to him and told him that everything would be all right. In short order, the song was born.

So, far from being an ugly song which extolled the virtues and pleasures of marijuana, Let It Be is a beautiful song of epic love and inspiration which will forever live among the outstanding pieces of music.

Apparently, the other song which I quoted remains exactly what it was: a brief dissertation on the adventures of pot. "One Toke Over the Line, Sweet Jesus, One Toke Over the Line." Again, a toke is a deep inhaling of a drag off a marijuana cigarette. That speaks for itself.

Yes, I do stand corrected. This incident has all the proverbial appearances of an urban legend which has circulated for many years.

During the time I taught at Xavier University in New Orleans, I repeatedly heard that "Mother Mary" in the song Let It Be really meant Mary Jane, or marijuana.

Well, it sounded like a good, believable story at the time, as many urban legends do. At any rate, I wanted to make sure that the story's retraction and correction got the same amount of exposure as the false version did.

Here we go again with the ancient piece of advice: "Believe nothing of what you hear, and half of what you see."

Giving way for a slight bit of exaggeration, the old saying rings true with more frequent pain and embarrassment than we care to admit. By and large, very few people sift through any sources or research before they speak. This fact alone exposes us to a gross surfeit of misinformation and falsehood.

It is no wonder, then, that our conversations and communications at every level leave much to be desired in accuracy, meaning and inspiration. We are constantly hounded by the specter of

by Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

falsehood and misinformation. It is no accident that communication is the single most difficult thing we have to do.

Whether in our families, schools, churches, workplaces, recreation venues or in the streets, we either labor mightily to get it right when we talk, write or otherwise communicate, or we slouch at it and get it wrong.

Many bugaboos pursue us doggedly as we struggle to communicate. Take, for instance, the bad news syndrome: "Bad news travels fast."

So fast, in fact, that, for many people, it is almost the only news.

The media represent the majority of us, in that they zero in on bad news, curiosities and all kinds of the sensational, especially if it is bad.

That is why newspaper front pages and TV lead stories are so negative and depressing.

It's a shame to be forced to admit that the media represent our interests, our tastes and our priorities in their shamelessly commercial presentation of negative and bad news, but that is the stark reality of it. Most of us want it.

Which is exactly why we have all the problems we do in communicating well with each other. Anytime our information comes through the clearing house of venal, commercial sources, the resulting "facts" will be distorted, inaccurate, negative, cheap and potentially destructive.

Such is the fodder, pabulum, drivel and swill fed to us by most of the media much of the time. It is up to each of us to be alert, aware, analytical and critical of whatever information is being fed us by any medium.

It is heartening that the "Let It Be" gaffe had a happy ending which did not further besmirch the name of the Beatles with regard to drugs. With a great deal more painstaking alertness and research, we can correct many things.

On a somewhat comical note, I did not fare quite so well before a funeral a couple of days ago. Doing some janitorial work, I was rushing to get things together before the Mass. A visiting minister felt nonplussed when I hastily told him to sit wherever he felt comfortable.

Taking his problem to one of the funeral directors, he was told concerning me: "Oh, he's crazy!" Overhearing this, the musician informed me.

I immediately took this to the funeral director who stoutly denied he had said it. But he knew the jig was up when I pointed to the musician who nodded his assent. The director frowned and began to study his feet.

"I may be crazy, but I was just rushing to get some work done in the rest room and sacristy. I apologize for any inconvenience I may have caused."

Yes, indeed. I do stand corrected.

The "Word" for the Week Reasons for the season

Dennis J. Prutow • Box 303, Sterling, KS 67579

Christmas week is here. What are you up to? What are your reasons for the season?

Let's see if they line up with the reasons for the season given by God. The Bible says, "When the fullness of time came, God sent forth His Son, born of a woman, born under the Law" (Galatians 4:4).

Now here are four reasons for the season given by God. Let's start with the last one. Christmas is God's Son born under the Law. This means that when Christ was born, He was subject to all the legal demands of His Father. Christ kept the Law perfectly. Christ was "obedient to the point of death" (Philippians 2:8).

We are also commanded to "worship the Lord in holy attire" (Psalm 96:9). But we are unable to do what Christ did! We do not satisfy all the legal requirements for heaven! "Our righteous deeds are like filthy garment" (Isaiah 64:6).

So, we need to trust in the good works of Christ to get us to heaven! Yes, Christmas is the gift of God's Son born under the Law "in order that He might redeem those who were under the Law, that we might receive the adoption as sons" (Galatians 4:5).

Christmas is also God's Son, born of a woman. What a wonderful reason for the season this really is! When Jesus entered the world, God took on human form. So much was this the case that the baby lying in the manger was declared to be "God with us" (Matthew 1:23).

Now if you do not believe that Jesus is God, who took on appearance as a man, by being born of a woman then you have missed one of the most significant reasons for this season. Allow me to encourage you to align your reasons for the seasons with God.

The St. Stanislaus College Marching Regiment

St. Stanislaus College Marching Regiment and drum major receive 'Classic' honors

THE SEA COAST ECHO

The St. Stanislaus College Marching Regiment and drum major Eric Huckabee, received high ratings at the Gulf Coast Festival in Gulfport on Oct. 11, and at the Gold Medal Classic in Perkinston on Oct. 18, according to Brother Ronald Hingle, SC, Principal.

At the Gulf Coast Festival the drum major and the percussion line received superior (I) ratings and the band and guard received excellent (II) ratings. During the Gold Medal Classic the drum major and guard received superior (I) ratings and the band and percussion line received excellent (II) ratings. Senior drum major Eric Huckabee was also awarded "Best in Class" for his performance at the Gold Medal Classic with a perfect score of 100.

This year's show, "A Bohemian

Eric Huckabee

Storm is Brewing," consists of music from the motion picture "Moulin Rouge." Selections include "Sparkling Diamonds," "I'll Fly Away," "Tango Roxanne," and "The Show Must Go On."

The band is under the direction of Mr. Jimmy O'Cain for the second year. When asked about the band's performance, O'Cain replied, "Each year these young men and women have raised the bar a little higher. Their dedication to the band and their support of each other should be applauded. I couldn't be prouder of what they have accomplished in the two years I have been here."

St. Stanislaus College is a Catholic residency and day school for young men in grades 6-12. The school fosters character formation and integrates faith development within a curriculum which is primarily college preparatory.

USM faculty and students participate in unique Red tide experiment off Fla. coast

Red tides are a common problem in Florida and have also been reported in waters off the Mississippi Sound. Recently, faculty and researchers from The University of Southern Mississippi's Department of Marine Science recently partnered with scientists from other universities and research agencies to detect and track toxic red tide organisms in Florida's coastal waters.

Using a combination of measurements from ships, aircraft, satellites, and underwater vehicles, Dr. Steven E. Lohrenz, professor of marine science at Southern Miss, along with Dr. Susanne Craig, associate research scientist, and graduate students Megan Butterworth and James Byrum, partnered with scientists from Rutgers, Cal Polytech, University of South Florida and the Mote Marine Laboratory to track the Florida red tide Nov. 3-7.

"The cruise was a unique opportunity for USM students and faculty to gain first-hand experience in the use of cutting-edge ocean technology as a means of confronting a serious threat to the quality of our coastal waters," Lohrenz said.

Working from the University of South Florida's Research Vessel

Suncoaster, the Southern Miss team and collaborators carried out round-the-clock studies using special optical sensors to track the abundance and characteristics of the red tide species, Karenia brevis, which frequently blooms in Florida's coastal waters.

While these ship operations were underway, special sensing equipment cruised throughout the area aboard underwater glides and unmanned submersible robots providing additional information to the scientists through satellite and microwave communications. The red tides were also tracked from the sky using ocean color satellites and an airborne imaging spectrometer carried aboard a plane flown out of MacDill Air Force Base.

This operation marks an unprecedented step in the combined use of advanced technology to detect and track red tide phenomena off the Florida coast. Lessons learned from this exercise will guide future efforts to monitor and better understand red tide blooms.

The Southern Miss Department of Marine Science is strategically located at Stennis Space Center in Hancock County, home to the world's largest population of oceanographers and hydrographers.

Popular annual holiday festivities at Old Capitol Museum scheduled

THE SEA COAST ECHO
The Old Capitol Museum of Mississippi History is readying for the holiday season and will once again feature traditional candlelight tours of historic buildings, Christmas trees decorated with period ornaments, and antique toys.

Christmas at the Old Capitol, the Old Capitol Museum's traditional historical holiday exhibits, will be on display through Tuesday, Dec. 23. The traditional giant Mississippi cedar, decorated with hand-crocheted snowflakes, gold tinsel garlands, and other ornaments representing the 1870s and 1880s will stand in the Old Capitol rotunda surrounded by toys from the late-Victorian era. Smaller trees decorated with ornaments typical of the Antebellum, Victorian, and Depression eras will be displayed in the Hall of Flags. Holiday wreaths and garlands will adorn the Old Capitol's exterior.

The ever-popular Old Capitol trains will again travel through Possum Ridge, a model town typical of Mississippi railroad towns in the 1940s.

The model trains—including customized versions of the "Panama Limited" and the "Rebel"—run throughout the day through Tuesday, December 30.

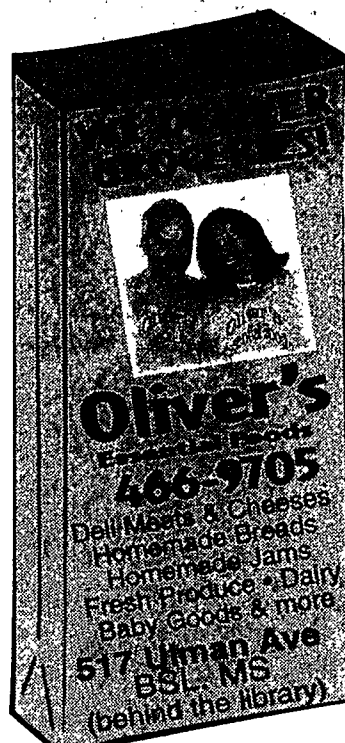

The holiday animated film "Small One," a perennial favorite of the Old Capitol's young visitors, will be shown weekdays to registered school groups. The film will also be shown weekdays at 3 p.m. and Saturdays at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. for the general public. Admission is free.

Scheduled to perform in the Sunday afternoon concert series, held at 3 p.m. on the Old Capitol Rotunda balcony, are the Hinds Community College Chamber Choir, Raymond, on December 7; the Mustard Seed Bells of Faith, Brandon, on December 14; and the St. Andrew's Cathedral Choir, Jackson, on December 21.

The Old Capitol will close Wednesday, December 24, at noon for Christmas, and will reopen to the public at 9:30 a.m. Saturday, December 27. In addition, the Old Capitol will close Thursday and Friday, January 1 and 2, 2004, and reopen to the public at 9:30 a.m. Saturday, January 3, 2004.

The Old Capitol Museum of Mississippi History, a National Historic Landmark, is administered by the Department of Archives and History. The museum is located in Jackson on State Street at Capitol Museum hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday to Friday; 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday; and 12:30 to 4:30 p.m. Sunday. Nevilles coming to Magic

The Neville Brothers will bring their unique style of music to the stage at Casino Magic Bay St. Louis Friday and Saturday December 26 & 27 at 9 p.m.

Tickets are $19.95, $24.95 & $29.95 and are available at the Casino Magic Box Office, by calling 1-800-5-MAGIC-5 or at any Ticketmaster location.

With four powerfully unique personalities, the Neville Brothers thrive on an explosive fusion of diversity and unity. The collective of talented brothers is world-famous for its embodiment of the New Orleans sound. Aaron, Art, Charles and Cyril Neville have expanded the horizons of New Orleans R&B while honoring the music's roots and tradition.

Drawing on the vast resources and multiple styles of African-American music, The Neville Brothers have combined R&B, jazz, reggae, and elements of rock and Zydeco with a harmony-based funk groove all their own.

The careers of Art and Aaron Neville began in the early 50's around the street corners, on the porches and at house parties in the notorious Callopie Projects. Energetic, but with little else to do, it was only natural for them to pick up the rhythms and moods of the city they were so much a part of. Aaron is perhaps the best known of the brothers. His hits include "Tell It Like It Is" in 1966 and his duets in the 80's with Linda Ronstadt on "All My Life" and "Don't Know Much." Art first came to note well before Elvis, having recorded "Mardi Gras Mambo" with the Hawkettes in 1954. "Mardi Gras Mambo" continues to get heavy airplay and respectable sales during the local Mardi Gras festivities.

The Neville Brothers

After the four put together careers separately and not having played together for eight years, the brothers united to help record the universally acclaimed "The Wild Tchoupitoulas" a year after their mother's death in 1975.

They credit their uncle with getting them to join forces. "He told us that our mother and father had always wanted to see us work together as a band," Charles recalls. "He knew that if we got together as a family, it would happen." The brothers became a best-loved local attraction and in 1988, they won a Grammy with "Yellow Moon." Then in the 1990's, "Brother's Keeper" cemented their star status.

They have sold millions of record worldwide and have gold and platinum records in six different countries. They have been the featured television performers on "Good Morning America," "Today," "Oprah," "Saturday Night Live," "Letterman" and "The Tonight Show."

Checking in with Brian Goodman

By Kate O'Hare
© Zap2it

For Brian Goodman, his role as mob enforcer Donovan Stubbin on the new FBI vs. mob drama "Line of Fire" Tuesday, Dec. 23, on ABC, is familiar territory.

"The first week, we were taking this money off these guys," Goodman recalls. "I have them against the wall. Then I slap a couple of them around a little bit. I'm driving home, and I had to begin laughing. They actually pay me for that?" I get to go home, I don't have to worry about being tailed or pulled over."

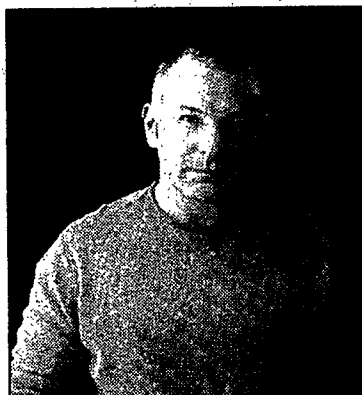

Goodman grew up "sleeping in project hallways, the Old Colony project, just grinding it out, trying to get lunch."

Goodman says his father was a hard-working Teamster, but he was drawn to the world of his uncle, "who was lost in the gangland wars of the '70s, Whitey Bulger and all that."

"The thing that sticks out to me most is waking up in them hallways with no way to brush your teeth. Being Irish-Catholic, when you grow up, everything's fine. You don't tell anyone."

"I'm not proud or ashamed, selling dollar joints to get lunch. Later on, I got into - the papers glamorize it, they call it the rackets - I call it the grind. I've been shot four times, once in the back of the head."

Goodman credits a stretch in prison in the late 1980s and early '90s with turning his life around. "I have two sons," he says. "The biggest eye-opener for me is when they'd come into the prison visiting room."

Brian Goodman

"... I didn't want to go back to prison and put my kids through that again."

So Goodman started auditioning. After landing parts in films such as "Southie," Goodman eventually decided to try his luck in Hollywood.

"There are a lot of people who are lost for identity," he says. "They're just stuck in that world. There is a way out. I'm not saying that it's through acting, but there was nobody locked into that life any more than me."

Birthplace: Boston.

Proud papa moment: "My oldest boy did a piece on the show, in episode 107. I'm Brian Joseph, and he's Brian Sean. I figured, 'Why stick him with all the bad credit?'"

Acting inspiration: James Caan. "He was the guy who planted the (acting) seed for me, watching 'Brian's Song' in 1971. That was it. I was 8 years old."

Travel's 'Hotels' marathon may help well- heeled tourists

By John Crook
© Zap2it

Planning a midwinter 2004 vacation? Not sure where to stay?

Well, help is on the way via Travel Channel's "Great Hotels" marathon airing Tuesday, Dec. 23.

Oh, wait, just one more thing: You do have enough cash to choke a horse or 20, right?

Because otherwise, any pleasure viewers get from watching this marathon likely will be filed under "armchair traveler."

And, after all, there's a reason this series, hosted by engaging but not too cloying Samantha Brown, is called "Great Hotels": These are not the kind of places you check in and immediately ask the desk clerk what time they roll out the complimentary coffee and danish in the lobby each morning.

No, these places fall more into the "if you have to ask how much the rates are, you can't afford it" category.

The Travel Channel marathon encompasses facilities ranging from the family-friendly Disney's Yacht and Beach Club Resorts near Orlando, Fla. - which probably is among the most affordable complexes featured here, believe it or not - to New York's glittering Plaza Hotel, an expensive if prolific place to star-watch in New York.

Among the other hotels spotlighted during the Travel marathon: the beachside Kahala Mandarin Oriental hotel in Hawaii; the Ritz-Carlton in the "Big Easy" of New Orleans; the stunning, environmentally incorporated The Boulders in the desert near Phoenix; Disney's Grand Californian Hotel in Anaheim; the Rittenhouse Hotel of Philadelphia; and the Driskill-San Jose Hotel located in Austin, Texas.

Carol Burnett gets an earful as new Kennedy Center honoree

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

Not every edition of the Kennedy Center Honors requires a charwoman on stage.

It's entirely appropriate this year, though, since Carol Burnett is one of the five honorees. The beloved actress-comedian will be in the presidential box with her fellow recipients - music legends James Brown and Loretta Lynn, film and stage director Mike Nichols, and violinist Itzhak Perlman - as "The 26th Annual Kennedy Center Honors: A Celebration of the Performing Arts" airs Friday, Dec. 26, on CBS from the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C. Caroline Kennedy played host at the Dec. 7 taping, replacing traditional host Walter Cronkite, who had laryngitis.

The current President and Mrs. Bush attended the event, along with the first President and Mrs. Bush. Featured performers included Alan Alda, Julie Andrews, Dan Aykroyd, Scott Bakula, Candice Bergen, Gail Brooks, Kim Cattrall, Tim Conway, Florence Henderson, Harvey Korman, LL Cool J, Patty Loveless, Lyle Lovett, Elaine May (Nichols' former writing and performing partner), Reba McEntire, Bernadette Peters, Chita Rivera, Sissy Spacek (who won an Oscar for playing honoree Lynn in the 1980 movie "Coal Miner's Daughter"), Elaine Stritch, Meryl Streep, Trisha Yearwood and violinist Pinchas Zukerman.

Burnett was shocked by the notification that she was receiving the Kennedy Center Honors. "It was by FedEx," she recalls. "I remember looking at the envelope and thinking, 'I wonder what that's about.' My husband (Brian Miller) was with me when I opened it, and after I did, my jaw just dropped. I said, 'Am I reading this correctly?'

"It's like the football captain asking you to the prom," Burnett says. "When you start to deal with all the details, how you're going to get there and where you're going to stay, it really starts to sink in. All of a sudden, it's just minutes away, and you just hope you're going to be OK. The people I know who have sat in that box all say the same thing, that it's like a dream - and that you have to look at the show again to realize you were actually there."

The six-time Emmy winner is no stranger to the Kennedy Center Honors, having appeared in the ceremony to salute other recipients. "The first time was 20 years ago," Burnett recalls, "when I was in the tribute to Jimmy Stewart, who was my idol. Then I appeared 10 or 12 years ago for Beverly Sills, and again two years ago for Julie (Andrews, who reciprocates this year by helping to honor close friend Burnett)."

Nichols is the only other 2003 honoree Burnett has known previously. "Mike and I go all the way back to 1957," she says, "when we were both starting out at the Blue Angel in New York. We performed there, not at the same time, but during the same summer. When you get that Kennedy Center letter, they don't tell you for quite a while who else is being honored. I guess they don't want anybody else to blab about it until they make the official announcement."

In fact, Burnett is glad not to have to say anything at all while getting the Kennedy Center Honors, which also entails a State Department dinner and a White House reception. "I would be a wreck if I had to get up and say something," she says. "That would make me nuts. All you have to do with this is smile, wave and weep. It's just great. You could go there with laryngitis and it would still be fine. They don't make you sing for your supper, and I just think that's so classy."

Executive producer George Stevens Jr., one of the originators of the Kennedy Center Honors, never has lost his zest for staging the event. "Once you've chosen the honorees," he says, "the process is simply one of creating order out of chaos, and that's what's fun about it. From who performs to the order in which the tributes (appear), it's just a Rubik's Cube of infinite possibilities, and exploring those is great fun."

Van Buren, Briscoe wear union lapel pins

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it

Q On "Law & Order," Lt. Van Buren and Lennie Briscoe (S. Epatha Merkerson, Jerry Orbach) both wear the same lapel pin. What does it represent? - Ellen B. Cutler, Aberdeen, Md.

A "Epatha and Jerry wear mini-badges that represent the Detectives' Endowment Association," an NBC publicist replies. "They also wear American flag (pins)."

According to its official Web site, the Detectives' Endowment Association was founded as a fraternal organization in 1917. As a labor union, it gained independent collective bargaining status in 1963 to act as the exclusive representative of active and retired New York City Police Department detectives.

Q Why is it that not one obituary of John Ritter mentioned that he voiced "Clifford the Big Red Dog" on PBS? Are there any plans to find someone else, or will no new shows be made? -CJP, Westbury, Conn.

A First, some obits I saw did, in fact, mention Ritter's "Clifford" gig, but given the beloved actor's long and diverse list of credits, as well as the shocking abruptness of his passing, few reports made any pretense of offering an exhaustive list of his work.

Second, a "Clifford" publicist tells me that, even before Ritter's untimely death, "Clifford the Big Red Dog" had given way as a series to a prequel, "Clifford's Puppy Days," in which actress Lara Miller voices younger Clifford. Even at that point, there were no plans in the works to produce new episodes of "Clifford the Big Red Dog" and the prospect is even less likely given the loss of Ritter.

Q What was the name of the 1960s TV show in which Michael Rennie starred? It opened with the shot of a man casting a long shadow from a street light. -Marvin Hogan, Valley View, Texas.

A Since Rennie starred in only one TV series during his career, you must be referring to "The Third Man," an early 1960s British-American adaptation of the Graham Greene adventure novel, which previously had been a successful '50s film and a radio series starring Orson Welles.

TV lights up the nights before Christmas with holiday fare

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

The 12 days of Christmas are dwindling to a precious few as Dec. 25 approaches. With that in mind, here are 12 of the top remaining yuletide attractions that various networks will present in the days to come.

1) "THE WALT DISNEY WORLD CHRISTMAS DAY PARADE" (Thursday, Dec. 25, ABC): Mickey Mouse and company mark the holiday again at the popular Florida theme park, as Regis Philbin and Kelly Ripa host for the third consecutive year. Scheduled performers include Clay Aiken ("American Idol"), Enrique Iglesias, Jessica Simpson and LeAnn Rimes. Several "The Brady Bunch" cast members appear at the Disney-MGM Studios.

2) "IT'S A WONDERFUL LIFE" (Wednesday, Dec. 24, NBC): A Christmas Eve viewing tradition since the days when it started every hour on the hour on various stations, director Frank Capra's 1946 film remains available on that night courtesy of NBC (which also showed it earlier in the holiday season). James Stewart is brilliant in his quintessential role as George Bailey, the Bedford Falls ne'er-do-well who wants to end his life ... until novice angel Clarence (Henry Travers) shows him a Georgeless world. For many people, Christmas wouldn't be Christmas without this classic.

3) "A CHRISTMAS STORY" (Wednesday, Dec. 24, through Thursday, Dec. 25, TNT): And speaking of Christmas-movie musts, this wistful 1983 favorite is humorist Jean Shepherd's story of young Ralphie (Peter Billingsley) and his desire for a Red Ryder BB gun under the tree. This comedy is memorable for so many things - a tongue stuck to a flagpole, Dad's (Darren McGavin) prized leg lamp, a younger brother (Scott Schwartz) who sticks his face in mashed potatoes and snorts like a pig - choosing just one favorite scene is a real challenge.

4) "THE CHRISTMAS SHOES" (Sunday, Dec. 21, CBS): If the song of the same name moves you to tears, prepare to be an emotional wreck upon seeing this 2002 TV-movie version. Rob Lowe stars as a driven attorney who becomes involved in the plight of a youngster and the boy's terminally ill mother (Max Morrow, Kimberly Williams). Enough said.

5) "GREAT PERFORMANCES" (Wednesday, Dec. 24, PBS; check local listings): "The Nutcracker" is a staple of the holidays, given how many dance troupes around the world perform it each December. This program from 2001 is the Royal Ballet's version, staged by Sir Peter Wright at London's Covent Garden Opera; Ivan Putrov has the title role.

6) "AN AMERICAN IDOL CHRISTMAS" (Tuesday, Dec. 23, Fox): If you missed it when it first aired around Thanksgiving, here's another chance to hear the holiday crooning of stars of the talent competition's first two seasons. Clay Aiken - maybe the hardest-working man in television this yuletide - plays host and joins others, including "Idol" winners Kelly Clarkson and Ruben Studdard, to harmonize.

7) "A HOME FOR THE HOLIDAYS" (Tuesday, Dec. 23, CBS): In recent years, this special about adoption has become synonymous with the Christmas season. The fifth annual edition features performances by music stars including Sheryl Crow, Vince Gill and Amy Grant, as well as testimonials by actors Jamie Foxx (who is an adoptee) and Lauren Holly (an adoptive parent).

8) "A SEASON FOR MIRACLES" (Sunday, Dec. 21, Hallmark Channel): She's been seen chasing bad guys lately as "Karen Sisco," but Carla Gugino shows her softer side in this engrossing 1999 "Hallmark Hall of Fame" drama. She plays a woman unwilling to give up her incarcerated sister's two children, so she goes on the lam with them - and ends up in a tranquil place that happens to be called Bethlehem. Lynn Redgrave and Patty Duke also star.

9) "HOLIDAY INN" (Wednesday, Dec. 24, Turner Classic Movies): Bing Crosby stars in this 1942 rendering of the Irving Berlin-scored lark about two pals (the other one played here by Fred Astaire) who run a holidays-only resort ... and vie for the same woman (Marjorie Reynolds).

10) "BIOGRAPHY" (Wednesday, Dec. 24, A&E Network): Just about everything you ever wanted to know about Santa Claus is covered by this episode, which has aired since 1994. The richly illustrated program eschews wilder myths to focus on the real genesis of the legend of Kriss Kringle.

11) "THE GREATEST CHRISTMAS MOMENTS OF ALL TIME" (Friday, Dec. 26, Fox): OK, so this airs the day after Christmas - but since the tree still will be up and leftovers will be around, where's the problem? Tiffani Thiessen ("Beverly Hills, 90210") hosts this Hosts Regis Philbin and Kelly Ripa join Mickey Mouse to welcome visitors - on site and at home - to the popular Florida theme park as ABC airs the "Walt Disney World Christmas Day Parade" Thursday.

encore special that culls clips from various movies and TV episodes, putting them under such subtitles as "Deck the Halls" and "Up on the Rooftop."

12) "DIE HARD" (Sunday, Dec. 28, Fox): This 1988 action hit may not seem a holiday movie at first blush, but consider that its story line, a takeover of a Los Angeles office building, unfolds on Christmas Eve. Bruce Willis's New York police detective intends to have a yuletide reunion with his estranged wife (Bonnie Bedelia), but runs into lots of trouble thanks to a stylish thief (Alan Rickman) and his gang. Willis and Christmas didn't have it any easier in "Die Hard 2," which also took place in December.

Sumners and Hamilton to skate in NBC yuletide special

By John Crook
© Zap2it

Fans of figure skating may feel a twinge of nostalgia during NBC's "Capitol One Holiday Celebration on Ice" special airing on Christmas Day.

The show, taped Dec. 2 at the Carolina Center in Columbia, S.C., finds some of today's finest figure skaters - Scott Hamilton, Rosalynn Sumners, Brian Orser and Ekaterina Gordeeva - sharing the ice with rising stars Kyoko Ina and John Zimmerman for a holiday program that features live vocals by country star Lee Ann Womack.

"These NBC specials look and feel like nothing else as far as ice skating goes," says Sumners, the 1984 Olympic silver medalist acclaimed for the grace and elegance of her skating. "We spend so much time skating to canned music that when we turn around and see live musicians - whether it's a symphony or someone like Charlotte Church or Lee Ann Womack - it gives the whole evening a completely different kind of energy."

The one-night special also features 2002 gold medalist Alexei Yagudin, U.S. National Champion Todd Eldredge, Canadian National Champion Nicole Bobek and U.S. National Pair Champions Jenni Meno and Todd Sand. It follows a strikingly different behind-the-scenes routine than the skaters follow for competitive appearances, or even a tour such as "Stars on Ice," Sumners explains.

"With 'Stars on Ice,' we take up to six weeks to put it together, but most of these one-time-only events we put together two or three days before the show. We've all skated together before, and hopefully at home you would never know we did just put it together that quickly," she laughs. "Our goal is to make it look as if we have spent just as much time on this one-time-only special as we did on, say, the 'Stars on Ice' tour, which we do over and over again around the country."

Shows like the NBC special are sheer fun for the artists, says Steve Disson, executive producer of this and the upcoming Brian Boitano holiday special.

"There's just no comparison between what a skater faces in one of our specials and what he or she faces in competition, where, among other things, you have to wonder whether there's a crooked judge in the mix," Disson says. "Our shows are a chance for the skaters to just show an audience what they do best, which is entertain."

In addition to the widely publicized overhauling of how her sport is judged, Sumners admits concern that figure skating recently has become a single-issue sport: Can the performer nail a quad?

"I think that's probably a permanent part of men's figure skating, because you want to see those leaps and spins," Sumners says. "With women's skating, though, I'm seeing injuries at age 12 or 13 that are permanent, and that's very sad. It's also sad that these girls who are putting all their focus on athletics are laying no foundation for a later career like me or Peggy Fleming, where you can skate artistically even if you can't land all the jumps."

For herself, at 39, Sumners freely accepts the passage of time.

"I'm skating less and less, and that's fine with me," she says. "I'm very sore after skating a charity show with Scott the other night, but the main thing is that I've been doing this since I was 7, and it's all 'me, me, me.' I'm tired of that. I'm working now with recovering drug addicts in the Seattle area, and it's just so wonderful that it's not all about me."

Graceful glider Rosalynn Sumners, who won an Olympic silver medal in 1984, makes one of her increasingly rare public skating appearances on Christmas Day as part of NBC's "Capitol One Holiday Celebration on Ice" special, which she also co-hosts.

Fox's Bradshaw recalls sudden unemployment 10 years ago

By George Dickie
© Zap2it

On Dec. 17, 1993, the NFL shocked the sports world with the announcement that it had relocated the lucrative Sunday afternoon NFC package to the fledgling Fox network after 38 years on CBS.

Terry Bradshaw, who had been doing the pregame show on CBS then, remembers the time well. "I didn't believe it at first," says Bradshaw, now in his 10th year as an analyst on "Fox NFL Sunday" alongside Howie Long, James Brown and Jimmy Johnson. "I got a call early, early Sunday morning, and I think it was from (CBS co-host) Greg Gumbel. And he said, 'We've lost it.'"

Faced with unemployment, the Hall of Fame quarterback and winner of four Super Bowls with the Pittsburgh Steelers took action.

"The first thing you do is get rid of all your toys," he says. "You get lean and mean. By Monday morning, I had put all my cattle and horses in sales. I had let everybody that works for me go. Within a month, I had no assets at all other than just my ranch and a truck. And so, I was where I wanted to be."

Next, Bradshaw had to figure out what he wanted to do with the rest of his life. "And that didn't last very long because it was within a week, two weeks maybe, I was starting to hear from Fox. And so then I was trying to get all my horses back," he says, laughing.

Fox told Bradshaw they wanted him to be the centerpiece of their Sunday pregame show, a production they promised would change the direction of the genre. That impressed Bradshaw, but he still had his doubts. "My initial response was ... fear-driven," he says. "All I knew about it was Jethro and Homer, 'The Simpsons,' whatever they are. They didn't have a lot of programming. I had never seen the Fox network. I had never seen any program on it. I couldn't even get it at my ranch. And that was another concern - how did they get football when nobody can even find them? And so, I was angry but my anger was driven by fear."

His fears were allayed when he saw the talent that Fox was bringing over from CBS, such as No. 1 broadcast team John Madden and Pat Summerall, as well as behind-the-scenes personnel. "When they brought (executive producer) Ed Goren over," he says, "I got really confident because I knew that he knew how to run the football show. They had brought Madden and Summerall in, and I knew John would have an input. Basically, they brought over their production team, and I'm quite sure they had an impact on a lot of people that were hired. So slowly all of that (fear) eroded, and it got to where I was excited."

"By then, we had settled in on Jimmy. We got Jimmy, because he had left (the Dallas Cowboys, where he coached two Super Bowl winners), and they signed JB, who I'd worked with at CBS. Howie I'd auditioned with twice, and so I was starting to feel confident."

Fox had eight months to get its NFL operation up and running. On Bradshaw's end, that meant developing a rapport with his new teammates, adapting to being one of four in-studio analysts after being the only one at CBS, and getting used to a new way of doing things. "You know, that's a huge undertaking and an extremely big chance, and they had paid a lot of money to get football, and I didn't want them to be disappointed in me," he says. "And at the same time, they wanted personality, but I was smart enough to know too much of me is too much. And Jimmy had never done television; Howie had never done television. JB had been a broadcaster, and so I really had to kind of grow some wings here."

"And you stumble all over yourself and you've got to build a rapport with the people you're working with. From the get-go, you felt that Jimmy was going to go back (to coaching, which he did, with the Miami Dolphins, before returning to Fox this year).

"And as it worked out, slowly but surely, we found our pace and we became more open, more free."

"You see the show now," Bradshaw continues, "I think we've kind of set the standard now for entertainment and humor and a light touch. We deal with issues, but it's evolved. The show has got its own pace, it's got its own following, and people have grown with us."

"Denver Broncos at Indianapolis Colts" Sunday, Dec. 21 (ESPN, 8:30 p.m. ET): A roller-coaster season for the Denver Broncos has seen them win four straight, then lose four out of five. Which team will show up tonight in Indianapolis against the Colts? The Broncos midseason slide coincided with an injury to QB Jake Plummer, but just as important to the team's fortunes is the running of Clinton Portis, who has averaged over five yards per carry. Peyton Manning and the Colts need a win to keep pace with the Titans in the AFC South.

"NBA Basketball" Thursday, Dec. 25 (ABC, 6 p.m. ET): A Christmas evening NBA doubleheader in California begins in Sacramento, where Peja Stojakovic and the Kings host Dirk Nowitzki and the Dallas Mavericks in a matchup of two of the league's top scoring teams. Then, it's off to Los Angeles, where Shaquille O'Neal and the Lakers face the tough defense of Yao Ming and the Houston Rockets. By winning their first 10 home games, the Lakers stretched their regular-season home winning streak to an L.A. franchise record 25.

"Continental Tire Bowl" Saturday, Dec. 27 (ESPN2, 11 a.m. ET): It's not often a team gets to defend a bowl victory, but that's the position Virginia finds itself in in the Continental Tire Bowl. Quarterback Matt Schaub and the 7-5 Cavaliers play Pittsburgh in Charlotte, N.C., one year after defeating West Virginia in the inaugural Tire Bowl. Pitt (8-4) has ridden the exploits of sophomore receiver Larry Fitzgerald, who hopes to extend his NCAA record to 19 consecutive games with at least one TD catch.

All My Children

Juan Pablo and Edmund grabbed Rick, the nurse who tended to Carlos, and got him to confess to killing Carlos. Juan Pablo finally told Greenlee that he loves her and set out to pursue the head of the Calatravas family, only to have his car blown up. Tad suggested that Krystal spend the holidays with Babe, and Adam was shocked to find Krystal at his home. Bianca and Kendall survived the blast but Bianca sneaked out of the hospital to elude Erica and passed out in the woods. Coming: Adam and Krystal challenge each other.

As the World Turns

Rose collapsed attempting to stop Paul from leaving and was rushed to the hospital, where she died. Molly slipped a vial of potassium chloride into Dusty's drawer, leading to his arrest when the police found it. Carly suspected Mitzi of being involved, and asked Henry to dig up dirt on her. Meanwhile, Barbara hid the champagne bottle and glasses in Paul's empty crypt, then told Paul she's taken care of everything. Craig found a note from James to Paul and fingered Paul to the police as the killer. Alison managed to switch her sonogram with someone else's, and Chris was forced to accept not being the baby's father. Coming: Jessica and Ben have their hands full with Curtis.

Bold and Beautiful

Everyone was shocked when the test results showed Nick as the baby's father. Brooke was prepared to leave town rather than cause Ridge more pain, but he believed that they can make their relationship work and wanted to raise the baby. However, Nick refused to let Ridge adopt his child. Bridget told Deacon that although she felt responsible for the shooting she doesn't love him and she intends to marry Oscar. Deacon still believed that Bridget cares for him, as he signed the contract clearing Eric of the shooting in exchange for his company becoming a subsidiary of Forrester. Coming: Nick resists appeals regarding the baby.

Days of Our Lives

Sami had a narrow escape from the killer but when Roman unmasked the intruder in Kate's room, it was Lucas. Lucas got off the hook after he admitted trying to scare Sami. When Sami fled to Lucas after another encounter with the real killer, it appeared that their sparring might turn to passion. Jan was enraged to see Shawn share a romantic reunion with Belle. Vowing revenge, Jan stole a key to the loft and lay in wait for Belle. Aware of Nicole's ongoing attempts to seduce Brady, Victor phoned Chloe and offered to fly her back to Salem in time for Christmas. Roman called off the extra police protection, preparing to face the killer on his own. Coming: Mimi deals with a frightening encounter.

General Hospital

Devastated to find Dillon and Sage in bed together, Georgie intended to pay him back. Although Dillon regretted sleeping with Sage, he started to become friends with her. Carly regained consciousness and told Sonny that her love for him has returned. A jealous and again ruthless Alcazar vowed to get revenge by controlling Port Charles. Courtney said goodbye to Jason, unable to accept his risky lifestyle, and Brian was there to comfort her. Luke kissed Skye then backed away, grieving over Laura's upcoming birthday. Coming: Jason and Courtney start to reconcile.

Guiding Light

Learning that "Bad Girl's" budget would not be increased, Eden met with Brad Green and offered to meet his challenge to get more funding. Harley won Brad's confidence by encouraging him to vent his rage at Jeffrey. Phillip blamed himself when he learned the baby is gone. Olivia's odd choice of words aroused Christopher's concern, and Olivia later disappeared. Wanting to help the men in their lives regarding the Maryanne situation, Marah, Michelle and Marina followed Carrie to Cutter's Bridget, where a rusting car was raised from the lake. Coming: Tough questions for Buzz, Ed and Josh.

One Life to Live

Joey decided to go to London after Jen admitted that she slept with Rex. Antonio realized that all of the victims are connected to Nora, even as Nora recognized the killer's bag as one identical to Troy's. Flash was terrified when she picked up the phone and heard a music box. Walker and Blair continued to deceive each other, with Walker telling Starr that he's going to run away with her and Jack. Dorian told David they have to find someone to marry Paul in order to make him ineligible to inherit Aunt Betsy's fortune. Natalie read a card Cristian had left for her and fled, distraught. Coming: Michael makes miracles happen.

Passions

Sheridan's mental health declined as she persisted in believing that Beth's baby is really hers. Meanwhile, Martin became critically ill and his baptism was hurriedly prepared, as it appeared he would not survive much longer. Kay was upset when Miguel and Charity left together for the baptism. In order to help Theresa, Fox and Whitney had to pretend to be a couple. Coming: Sheridan has a special moment with her child.

Young and Restless

Frederick disrupted a meeting between Brittany and Sal, a man who offered to help Britt with her singing career. When Frederick threatened to have Marsino's closed down, Sal reported it to Angelo, who warned Bobby to handle Frederick before someone else does. Victor was arrested as Sharon, Nikki and Nick looked on. Nick brushed off Nikki's accusation that he's just like Victor, and went back to work. Michael cut a deal with Chris, then showed up to represent Victor in court. Vanessa and Phyllis each tried to figure out why the other is in Japan. Coming: Dru and Neil's wedding day arrives.

Heather Tom likes the new atmosphere

By Candace Havens
© Zap2it

"It was one of those things where everything just worked out the way it was supposed to," Heather Tom says of her move from playing Victoria Newman on "The Young and the Restless" to portraying Kelly Buchanan in "One Life to Live."

"Things weren't going in my best interests," she says of "Y&R." "The people at ABC and 'OLTL' sort of came in and have just been wonderful about all of this, and I get to play a great character."

"It's been kind of a whirlwind experience," she says of moving to the East Coast from Los Angeles where "Y&R" is taped. "I've got an apartment but I don't have anything in it yet. I started working immediately, so there's been no time. But I'm having the time of my life."

The fact that she has a much smaller dressing room and quarters are a bit cramped at the studio don't faze Tom a bit.

"I love the whole ensemble feel of it," Tom says. "I like that it feels like we are all in this together. It feels more like you are working in theater. And I love New York."

Dear Candace: Where did they get the new writers on "Days of Our Lives?" They are ruining the show.

There have been too many murders of our favorite characters in such a short time. I don't get it. Why couldn't they just send the characters away to see a sick mother or send them on a trip out of town? They didn't have to kill them.

I watched "Days" for years and it's always been a favorite, but now it just gives me the blues. -Ada T., Berwick, Pa.

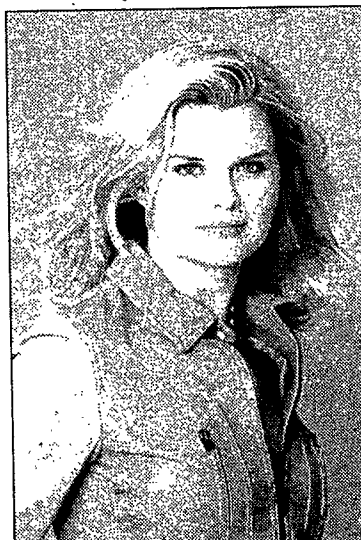

Dear Reader: You are not alone in your sentiments. Fans across the country are outraged by the departure of so many wonderful characters.

Head writer James Reilly came back to the show with a definite agenda, and he isn't done. Whether the show will be better for it is still up in the air.

Dear Candace: I wish they would put Roger Howarth back as Todd Manning on "One Life to Live." I miss having him on the show. -Kim Lichty, Leighton, Penn.

Dear Reader: Howarth is firmly ensconced as Paul Ryan in the CBS drama "As the World Turns."

Less Than Perfect

"One Office Party Too Many" uses the TV station's holiday gathering as its backdrop. Claude, Lydia and Owen (Sara Rue, Andrea Parker, Andy Dick) all have surprising encounters during the event, then worry about how their peers will react when the party's over.

9 p.m. on 19-PBS

Independent Lens

A two-year stint spreading their religion's gospel is a rite of passage for young men — and a few young women — in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. In "Get the Fire! Young Mormon Missionaries Abroad," filmmaker Nancy du Plessis explores the unique experiences of those who undertake this once-in-a-lifetime journey. She focuses on three young men assigned to Germany, but also talks to some who left the church after their missions.

6:15 p.m. on HBO

Movie: The Majestic

The often-maniac Jim Carrey continued his efforts to broaden his screen image in director Frank Darabont's ("The Green Mile") gentle 2001 drama about a screenwriter whose career is impacted by the 1950s Hollywood blacklist. Left amnesiac by a car crash, he then wanders into a town where the locals believe him to be a long-lost war hero. Laurie Holden ("The X-Files") and Martin Landau co-star.

6:30 p.m. on ESPN

College Football

Dontrell Moore, the top rusher in the Mountain West Conference, leads a hot New Mexico team into its second consecutive appearance in the Las Vegas Bowl. The Lobos began the season 1-3, but then reeled off seven wins in eight games to position itself for a bowl bid. The team will play Pac-10 representative Oregon State, which boasts a conference-leading rusher of its own in Steven Jackson.

7 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

Movie: Anastasia

While not historically accurate, the story line of this animated 1997 musical film is every little girl's dream: A common girl is transformed into a princess. Meg Ryan provides the voice of the poor orphan who learns, after a series of adventures in the company of two con artists, that she is the lost daughter of Russia's Romanov dynasty. John Cusack and Kelsey Grammer supply additional voices.

7 p.m. on 6-NBC

Movie: It's a Wonderful Life

James Stewart stars in director Frank Capra's much-beloved 1946 holiday classic — a Christmas Eve viewing staple — as George Bailey, a banker who believes he is a failure. He decides to end his life but is stopped by novice angel Clarence (Henry Travers), who shows him how many people he has touched. Far from a box-office smash when it was first released, the movie also stars Donna Reed and Lionel Barrymore.

8:30 p.m. on 4-CBS

Becker

In "Chris Mess," Becker (Ted Danson) upsets Chris (Nancy Travis) by declaring that he'll be spending Christmas with his new lady friend. After meeting the woman, however, Chris finds it easier to let go. Becker may have no regrets about his holiday plans, but the same can't be said for Margaret (Hattie Winston), who invites Linda (Shawnee Smith) to go caroling, with disastrous results. Alex Desert also stars.

9 p.m. on TBS

Movie: Grumpier Old Men

Had enough of the jolly old man in the red suit? Then spend Christmas Eve with Max and John (Walter Matthau, Jack Lemmon) in this 1995 comedy, which picks up where 1993's "Grumpy Old Men" left off. This time, they're taking out their grumpiness on the beautiful Maria (Sophia Loren), who wants to turn their beloved bait shop into a restaurant. Ann-Margret, Daryl Hannah and Burgess Meredith also star.

Kelly Clarkson was the first "American Idol," but how does she stack up against winners of similar contests around the globe? The answer is revealed by this new special. 7 p.m. on 4-CBS

Movie: Wild Wild West

Re-teamed with his "Men in Black" director, Barry Sonnenfeld, Will Smith assumes Robert Conrad's 1960s TV-series role as fearless government agent James West in this 1999 comedy-adventure, which yielded a hit title song by Smith. Kevin Kline plays master of disguise Artemus Gordon, who partners with West to battle diabolical Dr. Loveless (Kenneth Branagh). Salma Hayek co-stars as the saga's femme fatale.

7 p.m. and AMC

Movie: High Plains Drifter

Clint Eastwood repeated this 1973 Western's theme in 1985's "Pale Rider," but it makes for a highly effective story in either case. He plays a silent avenging angel who comes to the rescue of victimized townsfolk. Also notable in the tale, which endures as one of the star's most popular entries in this genre, is Billy Curtis as the Eastwood character's midget sidekick.

7 p.m. on TNT

Movie: The Other Sister

Directed by Gary Marshall, this enjoyable 1999 comedy-drama casts Juliette Lewis as a mentally challenged woman. When she falls in love with a young man (Giovanni Ribisi, "Saving Private Ryan") with the same condition, the relationship alarms her overprotective mother (Diane Keaton). Tom Skerritt, Poppy Montgomery ("Without a Trace") and Marshall-movie regular Hector Elizondo co-star.

9 p.m. on 4-CBS

The District

Mannion (Craig T. Nelson) returns to Washington, D.C.

to try to reclaim the job of police chief in "Jack's Back." He launches a public campaign intended to sway the mayor (Joseph C. Phillips) to rehire him. In the meantime, Mannion finds two new causes: saving a building targeted for demolition and clearing Temple (Sean Patrick Thomas) of a murder charge.

9 p.m. on FAM

Movie: The Natural

Fans of the Bernard Malamud novel were upset by the revision of the ending, but director Barry Levinson's 1984 drama works perfectly as a vehicle for Robert Redford. He stars as a baseball player whose first stab at the big leagues is ended by his encounter with a beautiful woman (Barbara Hershey). Years later, he resurfaces to play for a professional team. Glenn Close, Kim Basinger and Wilford Brimley co-star.

(Ratings for each film begin with a "star" rating - one star meaning "poor," four meaning "excellent" - followed by the Motion Picture Association of America rating, and then by a family-viewing guide, the key for which appears below.)

STARTING THIS WEEK (New releases):

"ALEX & EMMA": Kate Hudson and Luke Wilson each play multiple roles in director Rob Reiner's light but enjoyable comedy-fantasy. Wilson's main role is that of a writer under the gun to complete a novel, since he's being threatened by loan sharks. To try to get past his creative block, he enlists a stenographer (Kate Hudson) who has her own thoughts about his ideas - which come to life in fantasy sequences. Reiner, Sophie Marceau and David Paymer co-star. DVD extras: theatrical trailer; audio commentary by Reiner and Wilson.  (PG-13: AS, P)

"THE MEDALLION": As if wearing a specially powered "Tuxedo" weren't enough, Jackie Chan gets another boost to his martial-arts prowess in this easy-to-take comedy adventure. He plays a Hong Kong sleuth who's transformed into an immortal by wearing the title medallion, making him the target of a villain (Julian Sands) who wants the magical artifact for himself. Claire Forlani ("Meet Joe Black") and Lee Evans ("Mouse Hunt") co-star as Chan's partners against crime. John Rhys-Davies also appears. DVD extras: theatrical trailer; audio commentary by crew members; deleted scenes.  (PG-13: P, V)

Video Vantage

"ANYTHING ELSE": Although this familiar-feeling tale is a Woody Allen film, its studio undersold his involvement, barely mentioning him in the course of promoting the picture. Jason Biggs ("American Pie") plays a distinctly Allen-like comedy writer struggling to maintain his relationship with an aspiring actress (Christina Ricci). He gets advice from another humorous scribe (Allen) about keeping love alive. Danny DeVito, Stockard Channing and Jimmy Fallon ("Saturday Night Live") co-star.  (PG-13: AS, P)

"JEEPERS CREEPERS 2": The strange winged creature (played by Jonathan Breck) that terrorized a traveling brother and sister the first time returns in writer-director Victor Salva's ("Powder") sequel to his sleeper horror hit. The monster has a wealth of potential targets now, since it preys upon high-school basketball players and cheerleaders whose bus has broken down. Nicki Aycox ("Providence") is among the would-be victims. Justin Long ("Ed") reprises his role from the original picture in a cameo. DVD extras: theatrical trailer; audio commentaries by Salva, and cast and crew members; "making-of" documentaries; deleted scenes; photo gallery; storyboard for an unfiled scene.  (R: AS, P, GV)

extras: theatrical trailer; audio commentary by director Tim Fywell.  (R: AS, P)

"THE BONE SNATCHER": Scott Bairstow was on supernatural territory in the television series "Wolf Lake," and he returns to scary matters by starring in this horror movie. Bairstow plays a scientist who reluctantly leaves his laboratory to seek funding for a project. While in a desert, he gets involved in investigating the deaths of several prospectors whose bodies were totally stripped of their flesh. Rachel Shelly and Warrick Grier co-star. DVD extra: theatrical trailer.  (R: AS, P, V)

COMING SOON (Upcoming releases):

"THE ORDER" (Dec. 30): A young clergyman (Heath Ledger) risks his life to investigate strange, possibly supernatural fates that have befallen other clerics. (R: AS, P, V)

"S.W.A.T." (Dec. 30): An elite police force opposes an international terrorist in this update of the television series; Samuel L. Jackson and Colin Farrell star. (PG-13: AS, P, V)

"AMERICAN WEDDING" (Jan. 2): Jim and Michelle (Jason Biggs, Alyson Hannigan) prepare to tie the knot in the third chapter of the "American Pie" comedy series. (R: AS, P)

"OUT OF TIME" (Jan. 6): Denzel Washington plays a lawman implicated in a double homicide through his romantic link to one of the victims. Sanaa Lathan co-stars. (PG-13: AS, P, V)

"UNDERWORLD" (Jan. 6): A vampire, played by Kate Beckinsale, wreaks havoc in her quest to acquire what's necessary for her survival. Scott Speedman also stars. (R: AS, P, GV)

Patricia Richardson doles out doses of 'Strong Medicine'

By Jacqueline Cutler
© Zap2it

Whether as Dr. Andy Campbell on Lifetime's "Strong Medicine" or as Jill Taylor on "Home Improvement," Patricia Richardson radiates an air of calm efficiency.

The notion that she is actually like this prompts Richardson to say, "Any of my friends who heard this would fall on the floor laughing."

This just proves what a solid actress Richardson is, and her comment confirms that she simply tells it as she sees it. At 52, she celebrates her age and her life, which includes three teenagers, an amicable divorce from their father, and a live-in beau.

Though enjoying "Strong Medicine" (which airs in repeats weekday evenings this week), the medical drama in which she plays a women's health specialist, Richardson is frustrated that the show does not deal with abortion. "The main reason for this show was to educate women about important public health issues," she says from her Los Angeles home. "And we have had a real impact about organ donorship and abuse and the list goes on and on. We get awards from AIDS and domestic violence (groups) up the wazoo, and we have never done a show about abortion."

A spokeswoman for the studio producing the series says "Strong Medicine" aired two episodes concerning abortion before Richardson joined the cast during Season 3 last year, but the drama has not waded into the maelstrom that surrounds abortion since then.

Richardson wants the issue tackled again. "You want ratings and you are afraid to do something controversial?" she asks incredulously. "I already know how to do this so you would have more than one point of view. I have born-again Christians in my family, and they are completely against abortion ... Everybody's got to stop being afraid of it real soon. Who's going to do it if a woman's network doesn't? People are going to be dying," she says in reference to the possibility of legal abortions being repealed in the United States. "Losing their reproductive rights is the first step to how women live in Saudi Arabia and Afghanistan."

That aside, Richardson enjoys having a gig without laughs. "I didn't want to do comedy again," she says. "It is way harder when you are doing comedy. You can't just concentrate on the character and the plot. In comedy, the writers, instead of obsessing about character and plot, obsess about the jokes."

Richardson had no delusions when she signed on for "Home Improvement." "I didn't really want to play that character," she says of Jill. "I went in and read for that as part of a contract I had with Disney. The mother part is really boring. It's always about taking care of others ... I had done a bunch of series work before and you generally do it, it airs once and it dies. Then you can go on and do something else. I was shocked to find myself in the middle of the storm for eight years."

As far as taking care of others, she certainly knows about that firsthand. Richardson's three children include a son studying acting at the University of Texas and 12-year-old twins.

"I am blessed with the first one being a relatively sane child," she says. "Even getting through the teen years with Henry was not easy. It is probably good to have really good medication while your children are going through these teen years and that will help you be calm and flexible."

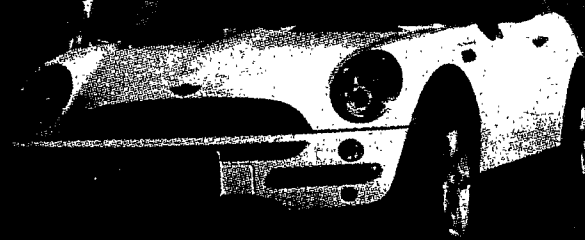

Her take on television is that of a mom trying to shield her children. "I am horrified by what my kids are seeing on MTV," she says. "I have it programmed so they can't see anything more than PG-13. They don't block MTV, and it is soft-core, total porn all the time ... Or those horrible reality shows like Jerry Springer. This is the scum of the earth. This is not normal. These are desperate people who will do anything to be on television."

As forthright as Richardson is about her politics and art, she is equally forthright about two topics often considered taboo: money and love. In love with Dr. Mark Cline, a retired psychologist whom she knew when they were students at Southern Methodist University, Richardson acknowledges she was cautious. "When you're a woman with a certain amount of fame and money, you are never certain what someone's motives are," she says. "You would be surprised to know how many people I have talked to wound up at a later age with someone they knew before. It is a quite common thing. To some extent, I am getting back to someone I know. He is the sexiest and smartest man I ever knew."

Patricia Richardson, who plays Dr. Andy Campbell on Lifetime's drama "Strong Medicine," says of her co-stars, "I call it three divas: me, Rosa Blasi and Jenifer Lewis." The series airs weekday evenings.
